Pace-Asciak, 1994-12-20 One of the currently most expanding and exciting areas in cardiovascular research is the study of receipt and dispatch of chemical signals by different cell types Major progress has been made during the last years and a number of intercellular mediators have been structurally identified and their regulation studied The impressive developments in molecular biology have provided most effective tools enabling us to understand message generation in much more detail than anyone would have appreciated a couple of years ago These developments also have a major impact on cardiovascular pharmacology This involves both the molecular design of new drugs as well as an improved understanding of how established drugs act Clearly changes in one mediator system will also affect others and it might be difficult to take out just one factor and to ignore others This is definitely true for myocardial ischemia where many different mediators are synthesized and released at about the same time resulting in a complex picture of events and an even more difficult selection of the most appropriate drug therapy      Prostaglandins in Clinical Research, Cardiovascular System Karsten Schörr, Helmut Sinzinger, 1989      Exercise for Cardiovascular Disease Prevention and Treatment Junjie Xiao, 2017-10-11 The book provides an intensive overview on exercise for cardiovascular disease prevention and treatment from basic research to clinical practice The volume firstly summarizes the acute and chronic response to exercise Secondly evidence for exercise as medicine for the heart based on clinical studies and basic research is summarized Thirdly molecular mechanisms mediating the beneficial effects of exercise including IGF 1 PI3K AKT signalling NO signalling C EBPA Cited4 signalling Non coding RNAs epigenetic regulators mitochondria adaption and exosomes are presented Finally exercise dosing prescription and future prospects are provided This book will provide valuable reference for researchers in cell biology physiology as well as physician physical therapist in cardiology sport medicine etc      Molecular Biology of the Cardiovascular System Shu Chien, 1990 Eleven contributions by 23 researchers summarize recent research in the field advances in the understanding of cardiovascular development organization structure function and pathologic disease processes that points the way to significant changes in the clinical management of conditions affecting the heart blood vessels and blood Acidic paper      Subject Index of Current Research Grants and Contracts Administered by the National Heart, Lung and Blood Institute National Heart, Lung, and Blood Institute, 1977      Cardiovascular Effects of Inhaled Ultrafine and Nano-Sized Particles Flemming R.
