Participating In God Creation And Trinity:

Participating in God Samuel M. Powell, 2003 In this exciting work Samuel Powell offers a new constructive and systematic vision of creation by interpreting it in terms of contemporary science and trinitarian theology Powell's work unfolds in three stages building on the multiple ways the doctrine of creation actually functions for Christians He first analyzes its regulative dimension Even in all the multiplicity of historical Christianity he shows the doctrine commits Christians to a particular set of normative beliefs about the world and God's relation to it Second Powell builds on the doctrine's hermeneutical potential It allows Christians both to interpret the meaning of creation in terms of other prevalent philosophical religious or scientific ideas and also to interpret the world as disclosed by scientific theory in theological terms In the heart of his book Powell correlates creaturely characteristics with their participation in God through the trinitarian persons Finally in light of his findings Powell drives home the often ignored ethical dimension of the doctrine especially in relation to the environment our consumerist lifestyle and eschatology Powell's bold proposal harvests from two of the most fruitful fields of recent theology trinitarian theory and religion and science and crafts a creative new vision of how we and all creation participate in the life and work of the triune God

Participating in God Paul S. Fiddes, 2000-01-01 Participating in God claims that a doctrine of the Trinity cannot be developed in isolation from pastoral experience It is not sufficient to view the persons of the Trinity as offering a mere example for human relationships actual participation in this triune communication shapes both our knowledge of God and the pastoral practices that flow from it Paul S Fiddes develops a radical understanding of the persons in God as nothing other than relations or as movements of divine relationship into which we are drawn This important new book engages in conversation with recent thought about the Trinity in Catholic Protestant and Orthodox theology But it does so always through theological reflection on pastoral concerns Fiddes brings the doctrine of the Trinity into dialogue with key issues including the relation of the individual to community the nature of power and authority the effect of intercessory prayer the problems of suffering the power of forgiveness the threat of death the use of spiritual gifts and the living of a sacramental life Participating in God is essential reading for all those interested in Christian doctrine and pastoral care

Missio Dei and the Means of Grace David Martin Whitworth, 2019-04-16 The missio Dei concept has shifted missiological thinking from an anthropocentric view of mission to the understanding that the church and persons are participants in the missio Dei A Wesleyan perspective of grace and the means of grace inform the development of a theology of participation in the missio Dei that overcomes the repetitive articulations of mission as simply being human action or divine action Through the means of grace Christian disciples participate in the missio Dei as those transformed by God's love and those through whom that love embraces and transforms the world Missio Dei and the Means of Grace A Theology of Participation offers a profoundly simple approach and understanding to twenty first century missiology that is applicable for all persons all ages and all ecclesial expressions of the Christian church as participation in the missio Dei through the means of grace is understood to be a holistic way of life where spiritual formation is understood as inseparable from justice ministries

Reclaiming Participation Cynthia Peters Anderson, 2014-11-01 In an era that oscillates regularly between nihilism and the erosion of moral vision on the one hand and pseudo gnostic myths of self apotheosis on the other the classical Christian claim of human participation in the divine as the story of the transformation of human life in its physical moral spiritual and eschatological dimensions takes on radical counter cultural color It is an affirmation that offers hope and meaning for humanity secured by God's participation in human life through Jesus Christ The Christological ground of this claim is crucial to secure and animate the argument of this text The author performs in this a retrieval of the Christological vision of the unification of the divine and the human in the single subject of Jesus Christ as the programmatic center point of human transformation and participation articulated particularly by Cyril of Alexandria The patristic pattern is used as a lens through which to examine and assess modern iterations those of Karl Barth and Hans Urs von Balthasar In this the author provides a critical updating of this vital classical theme annotating a vision of divine life opened up for created participation that can foster hope in the climes of contemporary life

The Hermeneutics of Participation Greg McKinzie, 2025-07-15 Many theological interpreters of Scripture have claimed that church practices produce well formed readers But which practices Greg McKinzie argues that missional hermeneutics challenges the church to include participation in God's mission among the indispensable components of readerly formation After a quarter century of contemporary reflection on missional theology however the meaning of participation in God's mission remains vague In order to explain why it is a critical hermeneutical experience therefore McKinzie sets out to develop a theological account of missional participation that incorporates the concepts of the embodied narrativity and solidarity Then in conversation with the hermeneutical phenomenology of Paul Ricoeur the study suggests how theologically recontextualizing a model of the movement from embodied commitments to textual interpretation in terms of participation in God's mission illuminates the epistemic reconstitution of the church's theological interpretation of Scripture Understanding participation in God's mission as theological interpretation's proper locus theologicus should reorient the notion of readerly formation because the formation of missional readers is the process in which God opens the reading community's embodied eyes of faith through the works of faith seeking understanding

Christianity and Critical Realism Andrew Wright, 2013-05-07 One of the key achievements of critical realism has been to expose the modernist myth of universal reason which holds that authentic knowledge claims must be objectively pure uncontaminated by the subjectivity of local place specific time and particular culture Wright aims to address the lack of any substantial and sustained engagement between critical realism and theological critical realism with particular regard to a the distinctive ontological claims of Christianity b their epistemic warrant and intellectual legitimacy and c scrutiny of the primary source of the ontological claims of Christianity namely the historical figure of Jesus of Nazareth As such it functions as a prolegomena to a much needed wider debate guided by the under labouring services of critical realism between Christianity and various other religious and secular worldviews This important new text will help stimulate a debate that has yet to get out of first gear This book will appeal to academics graduate and post graduate students especially but also Christian clergy ministers and informed laity and members of the general public concerned with the nature of religion and its place in contemporary society
