Phthonos In Pindar:

Phthonos in Pindar Patricia Bulman,1992 Phthonos in Pindar Patricia Anne Bulman,1989 The Emotions of the Ancient Greeks David Konstan,2006-01-01 It is generally assumed that whatever else has changed about the human condition since the dawn of civilization basic human emotions love fear anger envy shame have remained constant David Konstan however argues that the emotions of the ancient Greeks were in some significant respects different from our own and that recognizing these differences is important to understanding ancient Greek literature and culture With The Emotions of the Ancient Greeks Konstan reexamines the traditional assumption that the Greek terms designating the emotions correspond more or less to those of today Beneath the similarities there are striking discrepancies References to Greek anger or love or envy for example commonly neglect the fact that the Greeks themselves did not use these terms but rather words in their own language such as org and philia and phthonos which do not translate neatly into our modern emotional vocabulary Konstan argues that classical representations and analyses of the emotions correspond to a world of intense competition for status and focused on the attitudes motives and actions of others rather than on chance or natural events as the elicitors of emotion Konstan makes use of Greek emotional concepts to interpret various works of classical literature including epic drama history and oratory Moreover he illustrates how the Greeks conception of emotions has something to tell us about our own views whether about the nature of particular emotions or of the category of emotion itself

Divine Phthonos in Pindar [microform] Peter Samaras,2004 In chapter 2 I identify two such possible motivations of divine phthonos c maintaining justice and d maintaining morality In chapter 3 I identify another possible motivation e maintaining diversity of opportunity viz in a competitive context granting success to one person means withholding success from another and the gods do not allow the same individuals and families to win all contests I allow f that there may be motivations for phthonos which I have not been able to identify or which are inscrutable Chapter 4 contains an in depth study of the theme of divine phthonos in one Pindaric ode Isth 7 Many of Pindar s epinician odes were commissioned by wealthy and prestigious patrons to celebrate victory in panhellenic contests The odes include praise of the patron mythological material and prayers to the gods for continued good fortune Some of these prayers are phrased as requests to avert divine phthonos Influential treatments of the concept assume that phthon words originally and basically conveyed envy and jealousy Accordingly the ascription of phthonos to the gods in the odes is sometimes understood as an element of primitive anthropomorphism in Pindar But it has become common to see in the Pindaric idea of divine phthonos the ascription of a more principled response not envy or jealousy in the common senses of those words but rather the vigilance with which the gods protect their own status and prerogatives against human encroachments Readers maintain that superlative human accomplishments like those achieved by Pindar s patrons lift mortals to god like status that such remarkably successful mortals run the risk of behaving more like gods than like humans and that it is such presumptuous behaviour that invites the phthonos of the gods Study of the early pre Pindaric use of phthon words carried out in chapter 1 suggests that phthon words originally conveyed a reduction or diminution of a stream or supply to someone of something vital beneficial or desirable hence a suspension of generosity withholding stinting begrudging The ascription of phthonos to the gods simply means that the gods may withhold blessings The weakness of the traditional theories of divine phthonos outlined above lies in part in the fact that they unnecessarily limit the causes of divine withholding to a envy and common jealousy or else to b vigilance over prerogatives But in principle such withholding or disallowing may be motivated by any number of reasons

Phthonos in Pindar [U.M.I. Patricia Bulman,1989

Eros and the Christ David E. Fredrickson,2013-06-01 The self emptying of Christ kenosis in Philippians 2 has long been the focus of attention by Christian theologians and interpreters of Paul s Christology David E Fredrickson sheds dramatic new light on familiar texts by discussing the centuries old language of love and longing in Greek and Roman epistolary literature showing that a physics of desire was related to notions of power and dominance Paul s kenotic Christology challenged not only received notions of the power of the gods but of the very nature of love itself as a component of human society

Pindar's ›First Pythian Ode‹ Almut Fries,2023-06-06 This is the first large scale edition with introduction and commentary of Pindar s First Pythian Ode Composed for Hieron of Syracuse to mark his Delphic chariot victory of 470 BC and his recent foundation of the city of Aetna the poem is not only a literary masterpiece but also of central importance for our understanding of Greek history and culture in the early fifth century BC As our only contemporary written source for the Sicilian Wars against the Carthaginians and Etruscans it stands on a level with Simonides Plataea Elegy and Aeschylus Persians on the Persian Wars This is a period where epoch making Greek victories in the east and west were celebrated by the greatest poets in a way that reveals much about the atmosphere in which their works were created and received The book offers a new edition of the text with a detailed introduction and commentary which discuss textual problems language metre and transmission as well as a variety of literary questions the historical background and the early performance and reception history of the ode It will be of interest to scholars and students of archaic and classical Greek poetry and of Greek history of the early fifth century BC

Envy, Poison, and Death Esther Eidinow,2016 At the heart of this volume are three trials held in Athens in the fourth century BCE The defendants were all women and in each case the charges involved a combination of ritual activities Two were condemned to death Because of the brevity of the ancient sources and their lack of agreement the precise charges are unclear and the reasons for taking these women to court remain mysterious Envy Poison and Death takes the complexity and confusion of the evidence not as a a riddle to be solved but as revealing multiple social dynamics It explores the changing factorsmaterial ideological and psychologicalthat may have provoked these events It focuses in particular on the dual role of envy phthonos and gossip as processes by which communities identified people and activities that were dangerous and examines how and why those local even individual dynamics may have come to shape official civic decisions during a time of perceived hardship At first sight so puzzling these trials reveal a vivid picture of the socio political environment of Athens during the early mid fourth century BCE including responses to changes in women s status and behaviour and attitudes to ritual activities within the city The volume reveals some of the characters events and even emotions that would help to shape an emergent concept of magic it suggests that the boundary of acceptable behaviour was shifting not only within the legal arena but also through the active involvement of society beyond the courts

Pindar's Songs for Young Athletes of Aigina Anne Pippin Burnett,2005-09-15 Consisting of individual studies of the poet Pindar s 11 odes for the victors of the athletic contests on Aigina the author addresses questions of mythicself presentation in this book as well as Pindar s techniques for unifying his audience and leading it into a shared experience of inspired success

Pindar's Metaphors Glenn Patten,2009 Pindar s victory odes have suffered from a curious lack of interest on the part of poststructuralism Even a first relatively superficial reading of the surviving corpus however reveals an intense interest in and exploitation of rhetorical figures and tropes and an element of autoreferential self questioning that throughout the history of Pindaric scholarship has attracted much comment In view of the radical discontinuity within language postulated by Walter Benjamin Jacques Derrida and Paul de Man between what is meant and the mode of meaning we can on this basis alone ask what effects the rich figurality of the epinicians might have on what they intend to say Are expression and intention in these poems always simply co extensive Or do the odes read in the context of a series of concerns addressed in recent decades by deconstructive literary theory reveal instead a level of reflection on the nature of literary language itself to which the hermeneutical assumption of such co extension does not entirely do justice

Sport and Spectacle in the Ancient World Donald G. Kyle,2014-11-05 The second edition of Sport and Spectacle in the Ancient World updates Donald G Kyle s award winning introduction to this topic covering the Ancient Near East up to the late Roman Empire Challenges traditional scholarship on sport and spectacle in the Ancient World and debunks claims that there were no sports before the ancient Greeks Explores the cultural exchange of Greek sport and Roman spectacle and how each culture responded to the other s entertainment Features a new chapter on sport and spectacle during the Late Roman Empire including Christian opposition to pagan games and the Roman response Covers topics including violence professionalism in sport class gender and eroticism and the relationship of spectacle to political structures

Gestures Geoffrey W. Bakewell,James P. Sickinger,2003 These thirty essays were presented to Alan L Boegehold a distinguished philologist and an inspirational teacher on the occasion of his retirement and his seventy fifth birthday The contributions fall into two categories each one reflecting Boegehold s diverse interests in classical studies the first section includes essays on literary and philosophical topics several of which pick up on the theme of gestures the second section is representative of Boegehold s more specialised research in Greek epigraphy history and law
