Parenting Behaviour and Children's Cognitive Development Sara Meadows, 2013-10-23 The association between parents behaviour and children s cognitive development is at the meeting place of several prominent theories of psychological development and a range of complex methodological and conceptual issues On the one hand there are theories which argue that the impetus of development is within the child and is largely unaffected by his or her experience of social interaction on the other are the commonsense experience of parents and educators and the body of neo Vygotskian theory which would see the child s development as profoundly affected by social interaction or even constituted by it The purpose of this book is to examine theories and evidence carefully in order to assess the causal links between parent behaviour and children s cognitive development There is a considerable amount of evidence that suggests an association between parents behaviour and their children s cognitive development but there are many possible explanations for this association including direct effects of parental teaching styles on the children s learning and motivation differential social class practices and opportunities genetic resemblances and methodological artifacts A close and critical look at a wide range of research and of theory is necessary if the causal questions are to be clarified This book develops the current arguments about the nature and causes of cognitive development providing a critical discussion of the available research and relating it to psychological theory It is suitable for advanced students of psychology and education
