

Earth Structure and Composition

Mini-Lesson

Read the following information. Then cut out and attach this box to the right-hand page of your science notebook. Use what you have learned to create the left-hand page.

The earth is not a perfect sphere. It is a little flattened at the poles and bulges slightly at the equator. Earth has a rocky surface covered with a thin layer of soil, but beneath this solid surface, Earth is incredibly different. The earth consists of three basic layers: crust, mantle, and core.

Compositional Layers of the Earth

- The crust, also called the lithosphere, is the outermost layer of the earth. The thickness of the crust ranges from 5 km (3 miles) to 100 km (62 miles). Some of Earth's crust is made of soil, beneath this soil is a thick layer of rock.
- The mantle, also called the asthenosphere, lies below the lithosphere. The mantle is the largest layer of the earth's interior, approximately 2,870 km (1,856 miles) thick. It is a hot plastic-like layer that surrounds the core. The upper part of the mantle melts rock, forming a substance called magma. According to the Theory of Plate Tectonics, the upper mantle provides the basis upon which Earth's plates slide.
- The core is the innermost part of the earth and consists of two distinct layers.
 1. The outer core is about 2,270 km (1,411 miles) thick. The outer core is composed of a liquid, mostly made up of iron and nickel.
 2. The inner core is solid, and is roughly 1,210 km (756 miles) thick. It is composed of solid iron and nickel.

- Step 1: Cut out the title and glue it to the top of the notebook page.
- Step 2: Cut out the diagram chart. Apply glue to the back and attach it below the title. Correctly label the layers of the earth.
- Step 3: Cut out the four word cards and glue each card in the correct box.
