Bacino, 2008 Research Methods in Clinical and Counselling Psychology Chris Barker, Nancy Pistrang, Robert Elliott, 1994 Research Methods in Clinical and Counselling Psychology presents a practical description of the research process taking readers sequentially through the basic steps of a project groundwork measurement design analysis and interpretation It also addresses essential background issues such as the underlying philosophy of the various research methods and the socio political issues that arise in doing research in service settings

Clinical and counselling research methodology is currently developing rapidly and psychologists are expanding their repertoire of methods. In this book the authors present a balanced appraisal of both traditional and emergent methods. They re-affirm the scientist-practitioner model that clinical and counselling psychologists have a dual role as both clinicians and researchers. The authors argue that research embraces a broad range of activities which can be incorporated into everyday professional practice. The book is aimed at students and professionals who want to conduct their own research and those who simply want to understand published research better.

Academic Writing and Genre Ian Bruce, 2008-04-07. Academic Writing and Genre is a cutting edge monograph that focuses on the use of genre based approaches to teaching academic writing. Genre based courses enable second language learners to integrate their linguistic, organisational and contextual knowledge.

Australian Journal of Botany, 2002. Disability & the Politics of Education Susan Lynn Gabel, Scot Danforth, 2008. Disability and the Politics of Education: An International Reader is a rich resource that deals comprehensively with the many aspects of the complex topic of disability studies in education. For nearly two decades global attention has been given to education as a human right through global initiatives such as Education for All (EFA) and the Salamanca Statement. Yet according to UNESCO reaching the goals of EFA remains one of the most daunting challenges facing the global community. Today millions of the world's disabled children cannot obtain a basic childhood education, particularly in countries with limited resources. Even in the wealthiest countries many disabled children and youth are educationally segregated from the nondisabled, particularly if they are labeled with significant cognitive impairment. International agencies such as the United Nations and the World Bank have generated funds for educational development but unfortunately these funds are administered with the assumption that west is best, thereby urging developing countries to mimic educational policies in the United States and the United Kingdom in order to prove their aid worthiness. This McDonaldization of education reproduces the labeling, resource allocation and social dynamics long criticized in disability studies. The authors in this volume explore these subjects and other complexities of disability and the politics of education. In doing so they demonstrate the importance and usefulness of international perspectives and comparative approaches.
