On Saturday, February 1st, the first day of Black History Month, Ms. Myra Harris, namesake of Harris Hall, transitioned. In 1979, Ms. Harris changed our university forever, one of TU's first two Black graduates.

Ms. Harris paved the way for the thousands of students who follow in her footsteps still today. She transformed communities through decades of service as a teacher in Maryland's public schools, further establishing her legacy as an inspirational civic leader in the greater Baltimore region and state of Maryland.

Ms. Harris' legacy as a pioneer at TU will continue to live on in our students and in this place so many of our students call home—Harris Hall. All across the TU community are encouraged to remember her.
