Completing the Accounting Cycle

Chapter Preview

Financial statements help employees understand what is happening in the business. In Chapter 3, we prepared financial statements directly from the adjusted trial balance. However, with so many details involved in the end-of-period accounting procedures, it is easy to make errors. One way to minimize errors in the records and to simplify the end-of-period procedures is to use a worksheet.

In this chapter, we will explain the role of the worksheet in accounting. We also will study the remaining steps in the accounting cycle, especially the closing process, again using Yasici Advertising as an example. Then, we will consider correcting entries and classified statements of financial position.

Feature Story

Speaking the Same Language

Recent events in the global capital markets underscore the importance of financial disclosure and transparency in markets around the world. As a result, many countries are examining their accounting and financial disclosure rules. As indicated in the graphic on the next page, financial regulators in over 120 countries now use the IFRSs issued by the International Accounting Standards Board (IASB).

What are the potential benefits of having countries use similar standards to prepare their financial statements? One benefit is that investors can compare the results of competing companies from different countries. A second benefit is it enhances efforts to finance growth. Companies (particularly in developing and emerging nations) need to raise funds from outside their borders. Companies that use IFRS
