Presidents Choice Design:

Discrete Choice Experiments in Marketing Klaus Zwerina,2013-06-29 The chapter starts with a positioning of this dissertation in the marketing discipline It then provides a comparison of the two most popular methods for studying consumer preferences choices namely conjoint analysis and discrete choice experiments Chapter 1 continues with a description of the context of discrete choice experiments Subsequently the research problems and the objectives of this dissertation are discussed The chapter concludes with an outline of the organization of this dissertation

1 1 Positioning of the Dissertation During this century increasing globalization and technological progress has forced companies to undergo rapid and dramatic changes for some a threat for others it offers new opportunities Companies have to survive in a Darwinian marketplace where the principle of natural selection applies Marketplace success goes to those companies that are able to produce marketable value Le products and services that others are willing to purchase Kotler 1997 Every company must be engaged in new product development to create the new products customers want because competitors will do their best to supply them Besides offering competitive advantages new products usually lead to sales growth and stability As household incomes increase and consumers become more selective fmns need to know how consumers respond to different features and appeals Successful products and services begin with a thorough understanding of consumer needs and wants Stated otherwise companies need to know about consumer preferences to manufacture tailor made products consumers are willing to buy
