Papers On Syntax:

Papers on Syntax Z. Harris, 2012-12-06 The selection of papers reprinted here traces the development of syntax from structural linguistics through transformational linguistics to operator grammar. These three are not opposing views or independent assumptions about language. Rather they are successive stages of investigation into the word combinations which constitute the sentences of a language in contrast to those which do not. Throughout the goal has been to find the systematicities of these combinations and then to obtain each sentence in a uniform way from its parts. In structural analysis the parts were words simple or complex belonging to particular classes or particular sequences of these. In transformational analysis it is found that the parts of a sentence are elementary sentences whose parts in turn are simple words of particular classes. The relation between these two analyses is seen in the existence of an intermediate stage between the two presented in paper 4 From Morpheme to Utterance. A further intermediate stage is presented in the writer's String Analysis of Sentence Structure. Papers on Formal Linguistics I Mouton The Hague 1962 though it was developed after transformations as a syntactic representation for computational analysis. Generalization of both of these analyses leads to operator grammar in which each sentence is derived in a uniform way as a partial ordering of the originally simple words which enter into it. Each step least upper bound of the partial ordering of a word requiring another forms a sentence which is a component of the sentence being analyzed.

Papers on Syntax and Semantics Georgia M. Green, 1972 Papers on Syntax Zellig Sabbettai Harris, 1981 UCLA papers in syntax, No. 2 Steven Cushing, William Greenberg, Grover Hudson, Robert Rodman, Renate Barsch, Theo Vennemann, 1972 Recent Papers in Syntax, Semantics and Computational Linguistics Filippo Beghelli, Murat Kural, 1993 Papers in Syntax Andreas Kathol, Carl Jesse Pollard, 1993 Asymmetry in Grammar Anna Maria Di Sciullo, 2003-03-20

Asymmetry in Grammar Syntax and Semantics brings to fore the centrality of asymmetry in DP VP and CP. A finer grained articulation of the DP is proposed and further functional projections for restrictive relatives as well as a refined analysis of case identification and presumptive pronouns. The papers on VP discuss further asymmetries among arguments and between arguments and adjuncts. Double object constructions, specificational copula sentences, secondary predicates and the scope properties of adjuncts are discussed in this perspective. The papers on CP propose a further articulation of the phrasal projection justifications for Remnant IP movement and an analysis of variation in clause structure asymmetries. The papers in semantics support the hypothesis that interpretation is a function of configurational asymmetry. The type token information difference is further argued to correspond to the partition between the upper and lower level of the phrase. It is also proposed that Point of View Roles are not primitives of the pragmatic component but are head dependent categories. Configurationality is further argued to be required to distinguish contrastive from non contrastive. Topic Compositionality is proposed to explain cross linguistic variations in the selectional behavior of typologically different languages. The papers in syntax include contributions from Antonia Androutsopoulou and Manuel Espol Echevarra. Dana
