The Construction of Value in the Ancient World John K. Papadopoulos, Gary Urton, 2012-12-31 Recipient of the Jo Anne Stolaroff Cotsen Prize Scholars from Aristotle to Marx and beyond have been fascinated by the question of what constitutes value The Construction of Value in the Ancient World makes a significant contribution to this ongoing inquiry bringing together in one comprehensive volume the perspectives of leading anthropologists archaeologists historians linguists philologists and sociologists on how value was created defined and expressed in a number of ancient societies around the world Based on the basic premise that value is a social construct defined by the cultural context in which it is situated the volume explores four overarching but closely interrelated themes place value body value object value and number value The questions raised and addressed are of central importance to archaeologists studying ancient civilizations How can we understand the value that might have been accorded to materials objects people places and patterns of action by those who produced or used the things that compose the human material record Taken as a whole the contributions to this volume demonstrate how the concept of value lies at the intersection of individual and collective tastes desires sentiments and attitudes that inform the ways people select or give priority to one thing over another

Symposium, 2001 Cahuachi in the Ancient Nasca World Helaine Silverman, 1993-07 Ever since its scientific discovery the great Nasca site of Cahuachi on the south coast of the Central Andes has captured the attention of archaeologists art historians and the general public Until Helaine Silverman's fieldwork however ancient Nasca culture was seen as an archaeological construct devoid of societal context Silverman's long term multistage research as published in this volume reconstructs Nasca society and contextualizes the traces of this brilliant civilization ca 200 B C A D 600 Silverman shows that Cahuachi was much larger and more complex than portrayed in the current literature but that surprisingly it was not a densely populated city Rather Cahuachi was a grand ceremonial center whose population size density and composition changed to accommodate a ritual and political calendar Silverman meticulously presents and interprets an abundance of current data on the physical complexities burials and artifacts of this prominent site in addition she synthesizes the history of previous fieldwork at Cahuachi and introduces a corrected map and a new chronological chart for the Rio Grande de Nazca drainage system On the basis of empirical field data ethnographic analogy and settlement pattern analysis Silverman constructs an Andean model of Nasca culture that is crucial to understanding the development of complex society in the Central Andes Written in a clear and concise style and generously illustrated this first synthesis of the published data about the ancient Nasca world will appeal to all archaeologists art historians urban anthropologists and historians of ancient civilizations Andean Past, 2007 Journal of Field Archaeology Association for Field Archaeology, 1997 Encyclopedia of Latin American History and Culture Barbara A.
