Public Policy
Toward Non-Governmental Organizations in Developing Countries William Jack, 2016. If a developing country government is not good at providing public services such as health care, education and social protection, would NGOs be better at doing so? What advantages do NGOs have over for-profit providers of publicly funded services? And considering the importance of donor funding, which is better for delivering such services: an international NGO or a grassroots NGO? Jack presents two descriptive models of nongovernmental organizations and poses normative questions about public policy toward NGOs. In situations in which optimal government intervention in a distorted or inequitable economy employs an NGO-like body, he considers which kinds of NGO might be used. First, in many developing countries, NGOs participate in the delivery of what are essentially private goods in particular health care and education. In an economy without NGOs, there may be good redistributive and efficiency reasons for the government to provide these goods in kind. But if direct government provision of such services is ineffective or inefficient, when is contracting out to an NGO-like institution preferable to using a traditional for-profit firm? Another way to frame this is to ask: What is the optimal taxation and regulation of private providers of publicly financed services? NGOs also provide useful real and financial links with external donors. They are used to provide services the government favors and donors are willing to fund. In this model, the service provider is chosen to yield the best outcome for both government and donor. In this context, Jack compares an international NGO and a grassroots organization. It may be more efficient to transfer donor funds through an international NGO than through a local NGO, but when donor-government cooperation fails, a project implemented by an international NGO is effectively killed. If a project implemented by a local organization can limp along, this otherwise less efficient organization might be preferred. This paper, product of Public Service Delivery Development Research Group, is part of a larger effort in the group to understand the role of NGOs in delivering basic public services. The Role of NGOs Jude L. Fernando, Alan W. Heston, 1997. Examining why NGOs are not more successful in achieving economic and social change, the contributors re-evaluate the role of non-governmental organizations throughout the world and describe the challenges they face.

The Role of NGOs in African Socio-Economic Development Trudy Owens, Ronelle Burger, 2014-06-30. Non-governmental organizations (NGOs), popularly known as charities, are acknowledged to be pivotal to poverty alleviation, especially in African countries where government capacity and revenues are often limited. Despite their prominent role in poverty alleviation, little is known about how these organizations function in developing countries. This book charts a new path by considering the role of NGOs in African development and by using a number of new large-scale representative data sets. The book integrates a fragmented literature spanning many different disciplines by providing an overview of what is known about the sector This includes the growth and importance of the sector a cross country comparison of NGO sectors and various perspectives on the role of NGOs The book also looks at the shortcomings of the literature or what we do not know mapping and exploring the questions the literature has failed to answer such as what motivates NGOs how are they funded to whom are they accountable and what are the determinants of their growth and survival Managing NGOs in Developing Countries LUMS-McGill Social Enterprise Development Centre,2005 This volume has well researched management case studies that are drawn from real life issues in non government organizations Participants who have been active in the NGOs have written the majority of the case studies included in this volume The other cases included in this volume are management issues that have been documented by the faculty of LUMS during their consultancy research These case studies are designed to help develop professionals to build and enhance the capacity of the social sector Comparative CSR and Sustainability Gabriel Donleavy,Carlos Noronha,2022-12-30 This book breaks new ground by providing a structured and cohesive set of contributions on the actions developments problems and theories of corporate social responsibility CSR With new case studies from the UN s Least Developed Countries LDCs contributors in this book investigate how firms in Eastern and Western countries are responding to and making use of evolving CSR guidelines The book addresses the following questions is CSR simply greenwashing or an authentic commitment to responsible corporate citizenship Has globalization drawn CSR conduct in LDCs closer to that of industrialized countries Stakeholder theory actor network theory and a new orbital theory of accountability are applied to give coherence to the case studies Other chapters address greenwashing in reports the impact of CSR in socially stigmatized occupations an analysis on what responsibility precisely entails in CSR and the interface between law and CSR The book also considers the impact of COVID 19 on the hospitality industry and includes a contribution from Ukrainian scholars one written while their city of Kharkiv was under attack by Russian forces This book will be a useful reference to those interested in discussions on crises climate change and SDGs and realizing sustainable goals through CSR The Role of Non-governmental Organizations in Development David B. Barnard,1991 NGOs and Political Change Patrick Kilby,2015-08-13 The Australian Council for International Development is the peak body of Australian international development NGOs This book explores ACFID s history since its founding in 1965 drawing on current and contemporary literature as well as extensive archival material The trends and challenges in international development are seen through the lens of an NGO peak body from the heady optimism of the first Development Decade of the 1960s through the growth in government support of NGOs in the 1980s to the challenges of the 2010s The major themes of ACFID are presented human rights gender justice humanitarianism NGO codes of conduct and influencing government policy both broadly and as it relates to NGOs Each of these themes is placed in a global context and in relation to what other NGO networks are doing internationally Results of Development Cooperation Through Norwegian NGOs in East Africa
