Sensory Coding In The Mammalian Nervous:

Sensory Coding in the mammalian nervous system George Somjen, 2013-04-09 Great advances have been made in the area of sensory physiology during the last few decades and these developments seem to be asking for a comprehensive review that is manageable in size and cohesive in content This volume has been written with that goal in mind In the first place I would like to thank Mr R van Frank of Appleton Century Crofts for asking me to do the job and my wife for persuading me to do it for writing it was an enjoyable task Much of the discussion of factual data set to print here evolved in question and answer sessions in courses given to students in physiology psychology and medicine and to physicians training in neurology neurosurgery and psychiatry Besides my students I had in mind while preparing this text my professional colleagues laboring on their lecture notes under circumstances perhaps not unlike my own The material is divided in two parts The first deals with the manner of representation of sensory information in peripheral nerves the so called first order code The second half of the text deals with the handling of sense data by the central nervous system One reason for dividing the material in this way is that many of the features of the first order code are common to all sensory modalities The intensity the place the rhythm the quality of stimuli are encoded by rules which are applicable albeit with appropriate modifications to all senses Furthermore these rules of coding are today rather well understood

Hearing, Speech, and Communication Disorders Information Center for Hearing, Speech, and Disorders of Human Communication,1974-08 Information analysis centers were developed to help the scientist and practitioner cope with the ever increasing mass of published and unpublished information in a specific field Their establishment resulted from a further extension of those pressures that had brought about the formation of the specialized primary journal and the abstracting services at the turn of the century The information analysis center concept was greatly advanced by the 1963 report of the President s Science Advisory Committee Panel on Science Information This report stated scientific interpreters who can collect relevant data review a field and distill information in a manner that goes to the heart of a technical situation are more help to the overburdened specialist than is a mere pile of relevant documents Such specialized information centers are operated in closest possible contact with working scientists in the field These centers not only furnish information about ongoing research and disseminate and retrieve information but also create new information and develop new methods of information analysis synthesis and dissemination The continually expanding biomedical literature produced by scientists from the world s laboratories research centers and medical centers led the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Stroke in 1964 to initiate a National Neurological Information Network of specialized centers for neurological information The Centers are designed to bring under control and to promote ready access to important segments of the literature
