Hansen, 1953 Sample Survey Methods and Theory Morris H. Hansen, William N. Hurwitz, William Madow, 1966 Multiple Imputation for Nonresponse in Surveys Donald B. Rubin, 2004-06-09 Demonstrates how nonresponse in sample surveys and censuses can be handled by replacing each missing value with two or more multiple imputations Clearly illustrates the advantages of modern computing to such handle surveys and demonstrates the benefit of this statistical technique for researchers who must analyze them Also presents the background for Bayesian and frequentist theory After establishing that only standard complete data methods are needed to analyze a multiply imputed set the text evaluates procedures in general circumstances outlining specific procedures for creating imputations in both the ignorable and nonignorable cases Examples and exercises reinforce ideas and the interplay of Bayesian and frequentist ideas presents a unified picture of modern statistics Sampling Theory David G. Hankin, Michael S. Mohr, Kenneth B. Newman, 2019-09-26 Sampling theory considers how methods for selection of a subset of units from a finite population a sample affect the accuracy of estimates of descriptive population parameters mean total proportion Although a sound knowledge of sampling theory principles would seem essential for ecologists and natural resource scientists the subject tends to be somewhat overlooked in contrast to other core statistical topics such as regression analysis experimental design and multivariate statistics This introductory text aims to redress this imbalance by specifically targeting ecologists and resource scientists and illustrating how sampling theory can be applied in a wide variety of resource contexts The emphasis throughout is on design based sampling from finite populations but some attention is given to model based prediction and sampling from infinite populations Sampling Theory is an introductory textbook suitable for advanced undergraduates graduate students professional researchers and practitioners in the fields of ecology evolution conservation biology and natural resource sciences including fisheries wildlife rangeland ecology and forestry Optimal Statistical Decisions Morris H. Mistiaen, Martin Ravallion, 2005 Past approaches to correcting for unit nonresponse in sample surveys by re weighting the data assume that the problem is ignorable within arbitrary subgroups of the population Theory and evidence suggest that this assumption is unlikely to hold and that household characteristics such as income systematically affect survey compliance The authors show that this leaves a bias in the re weighted data and they propose a method of correcting for this bias The geographic structure of nonresponse rates allows them to identify a micro compliance function which they then use to re weight the unit record data An example is given for the U S Current Population Surveys 1998 2004 The authors find and correct for a strong household income effect on response probabilities Cover verso
