Messages From An Owl:

Messages from an Owl Max R. Terman, 2014-07-14 When zoologist Max Terman came to the rescue of a great horned owlet in a Kansas town park he embarked on an adventure that would test his scientific ingenuity and lead to unprecedented observations of an owl's hidden life in the wild. In Messages from an Owl Terman not only relates his experiences nursing the starving owlet Stripey back to health and teaching it survival skills in his barn but also describes the anxiety and elation of letting a companion loose into an uncertain world. Once Terman felt that Stripey knew how to dive after prey he set the owl free. At this point his story could have ended with no clue as to what the young bird's fate would be had it not been for Terman's experimentation with radio tags. By strapping the tags to Stripey he actually managed to follow the owl into the wild and observe for himself the behavior of a hand-reared individual reunited with its natural environment. Through this unique use of telemetry Terman tracked Stripey for over six years after the bird left the scientist's barn and took up residence in the surrounding countryside on the Kansas prairie. The radio beacon provided Terman with information on the owl's regular patterns of playing, hunting, exploring, and protecting. It enabled him to witness the moments when Stripey was bantered and mobbed by crows when other owls launched fierce attacks and when a prospective mate caught Stripey's eye. On occasional returns to the barn the owl would follow Terman around as he performed chores usually waiting for a handout. Until now scientists have generally believed that an owl nurtured by humans becomes ill-adapted for meeting the challenges of life in the wild. Terman's research proves otherwise. Stripey surpassed all expectations by becoming a totally independent wild creature. With Terman however, Stripey remained tame, allowing the author to explore something one rarely sees in owls: a warm interest in humanity. Terman engagingly re-creates this dimension of Stripey as he describes with humor and compassion the daily challenges of probing the life of a phantom-winged tiger. Animal Totem Guides: Messages for the World Franki Storlie, 2011-06-13 Franki Storlie believes that every person possesses a spirit, heart, and soul that waits to be reawakened and longs to seek spiritual knowledge. In her guidebook Animal Totem Guides: Messages for the World, Storlie relies on her Native American ancestry and her personal experiences to provide clear direction on how each of us can connect with our own souls and spiritual guides, ultimately realizing true joy, inner peace, wisdom, and love in the process. Storlie has been studying and practicing spiritual teachings for the past twenty years and partners with nature in order to teach others how to meditate, bond with their inner selves, and find balance in a busy and often chaotic world. As she shares twelve totem animal stories that illustrate each animal's characteristics and area of influence she encourages others to begin connecting with the power animals that protect guide and communicate wisdom through our own hearts and souls Animal Totem Guides Messages for the World provides guidance and wisdom for anyone interesting in walking a new spiritual pathway beside power animals who through their gifts of strength and illumination will not only help us heal ourselves but also our beautiful Earth Holonic and Multi-Agent Systems for Manufacturing Vladimir Marik,Duncan McFarlane,Paul Valckenaers,2004-01-24 The increasing complexity of manufacturing systems as well as the overall demands for flexible and fault tolerant control of production processes stimulates among many others two key emerging technologies that are already making an important breakthrough in the field of intelligent manufacturing control and diagnostics These two paradigms are the holonic approach based on the event driven control strategy usually aimed at modular control systems that are directly physically linked with the manufacturing hardware equipment and the multi agent approach developed in the area of distributed information processing The research communities working in both these fields are approaching the problem of intelligent manufacturing from different viewpoints and until recently to a certain extent in an independent way We can however observe quite a clear convergence of these fields in the last few years the communities have started to cooperate joining efforts to solve the painful problems involved in achieving effective industrial practice We can see convergence in the terminology standards and methods being applied
