Method In Ecology Strategies For Conservation:

Method in Ecology Kristin Sharon Shrader-Frechette, Earl D. McCoy, 1993-09-30 This book discusses the help ecology can and can't give in environmental problem solving

Biodiversity and Environmental Change Emma Burns, Andrew Lowe, Nicole Thurgate, David Lindenmayer, 2014-02-06 This data rich book demonstrates the value of existing national long term ecological research in Australia for monitoring environmental change and biodiversity Long term ecological data are critical for informing trends in biodiversity and environmental change The Terrestrial Ecosystem Research Network TERN is a major initiative of the Australian Government and one of its key areas of investment is to provide funding for a network of long term ecological research plots around Australia LTERN LTERN researchers and other authors in this book have maintained monitoring sites often for one or more decades in an array of different ecosystems across the Australian continent ranging from tropical rainforests wet eucalypt forests and alpine regions through to rangelands and deserts This book highlights some of the temporal changes in the environment that have occurred in the various systems in which dedicated field based ecologists have worked Many important trends and changes are documented and they often provide new insights that were previously poorly understood or unknown These data are precisely the kinds of data so desperately needed to better quantify the temporal trajectories in the environment in Australia By presenting trend patterns and often also the associated data the authors aim to catalyse governments and other organisations to better recognise the importance of long term data collection and monitoring as a fundamental part of ecologically effective and cost effective management of the environment and biodiversity

Predicting Species Occurrences J. Michael Scott, Patricia Heglund, Michael L. Morrison, 2002-02 Predictions about where different species are where they are not and how they move across a landscape or respond to human activities if timber is harvested for instance or stream flow altered are important aspects of the work of wildlife biologists land managers and the agencies and policymakers that govern natural resources Despite the increased use and importance of model predictions these predictions are seldom tested and have unknown levels of accuracy Predicting Species Occurrences addresses those concerns highlighting for managers and researchers the strengths and weaknesses of current approaches as well as the magnitude of the research required to improve or test predictions of currently used models The book is an outgrowth of an international symposium held in October 1999 that brought together scientists and researchers at the forefront of efforts to process information about species at different spatial and temporal scales It is a comprehensive reference that offers an exhaustive treatment of the subject with 65 chapters by leading experts from around the world that review the history of the theory and practice of modeling and present a standard terminology examine temporal and spatial scales in terms of their influence on patterns and processes of species distribution offer detailed discussions of state of the art modeling tools and descriptions of methods for assessing model accuracy discuss how to predict species presence and abundance present examples of how spatially explicit data on demographics can provide important information for managers An introductory chapter by Michael A Huston examines the ecological context in which predictions of species occurrences are made and a concluding chapter by John A Wiens offers an insightful review and synthesis of the topics examined along with guidance for future directions and cautions regarding misuse of models Other contributors include Michael P Austin Barry R Noon Alan H Fielding Michael Goodchild Brian A Maurer John T Rotenberry Paul Angermeier Pierre R Vernier and more than a hundred others Predicting Species Occurrences offers important new information about many of the topics raised in the seminal volume Wildlife 2000 University of Wisconsin Press 1986 and will be the standard reference on this subject for years to come Its state of the art assessment will play a key role in guiding the continued development and application of tools for making accurate predictions and is an indispensable volume for anyone engaged in species management or conservation

Methods and Explanations in the Study of Human Actions and Their Environmental Effects Andrew P. Vayda, 1996 Annales Zoologici Fennici, 2004 Proceedings of the Gulf and Caribbean Fisheries Institute Gulf and Caribbean Fisheries Institute, 2007 Science and Environmental Decision Making Mark Huxham, David Sumner, 2000 Science is vital in informing the increasingly urgent and complex environmental decisions that affect all our lives from international agreements on action to limit climate change to decisions on growing genetically modified crops It is clear however that many environmental decisions are taken in the face of scientific uncertainty or ignorance and involve questions of politics and ethics that go beyond science Science alone cannot answer such questions as Are the risks of nuclear power acceptable and Why should we conserve wild species Science and Environmental Decision Making explores the use and limitations of science in helping to answer environmental questions emphasising the importance of ethics politics and sociology in the decision making process Starting with the question What is meant by a scientific explanation the first three chapters provide a simple introduction to the philosophy and sociology of science and the importance of these fields to environmental scientists They explain the logic of testing ideas in science and look at some of the absolute limits of scientific explanation showing how value judgements inevitably influence scientific work before exploring commercial and political influences on science Chapters 4-10 show how these themes are relevant in case studies ranging from genetic engineering in agriculture to conservation marine eutrophication and the use of models and radiation protection Each chapter is written by a researcher active in the area and begins with an editorial introduction highlighting the major themes illustrated by the case study This book is aimed at students of ecology environmental science environmental management and geography It will also be useful reading for sociology students who study how the science is applied

Sourcebook of Family Theories and Methods Pauline Boss, William J. Doherty, Ralph LaRossa, Walter R. Schumm, Suzanne K. Steinmetz, 2008-11-19 Origins We call this book on theoretical orientations and methodological strategies in family studies a sourcebook because it details the social and personal roots i.e. sources from which these orientations and strategies flow Thus an appropriate way to preface this book is to talk first of its roots its beginnings In the mid 1980s there emerged in some quarters the sense that it was time for family studies to take stock of itself A goal was thus set to write a book that like Janus would face both backward and forward a book that would give readers both a perspective on the past and a map for the future There were precedents for such a project The Handbook of Marriage and the Family edited by Harold Christensen and published in 1964 the two Contemporary Theories about the Family volumes edited by Wesley Burr Reuben Hill F Ivan Nye and Ira Reiss published in 1979 and the Handbook of Marriage and the Family edited by Marvin Sussman and Suzanne Steinmetz then in production Biodiversity Kevin Gaston,1996-08-13 Conservation management Evaluating the Sustainable Use of Wildlife in the Pacaya-Samiria National Reserve, Peru ,1999

Environment and Planning ,2007 International interdisciplinary journal discussing the relations between Society and Space Space is broadly conceived from landscapes of the body to global geographies from cyberspace to old growth forests as metaphorical and material as theoretical construct and empirical fact Covers both practical politics and the abstractions of social theory The Bulletin ,2004 International Environmental Affairs ,1994 Clearcut Edge Effects on Avian Nesting Success in Extensively Forested, Northern-Hardwood-Conifer Landscapes James Christopher Manolis,1999

Transactions Desert Bighorn Council,1997 Freshwater Quality Scottish National Heritage,1997 Paperbound Books in Print 1995 Reed Reference Publishing,Reference Reed,1995-12 Environmental Reviews ,1995 Design and Analysis of Long-term Ecological Monitoring Studies Robert A. Gitzen,2012-06-07 Comprehensive and multidisciplinary coverage of fundamental and advanced statistical tools and issues relevant to long term ecological monitoring Business Plan to Operate Electric Utility Market ,1995
