

One Million

1,000,000...

It is very easy to talk about "millions" or "billions" without fully realizing just how large a number even one million is. The numbers don't do this poster any favors, but can you find the answer to each of these questions?

- If each dot is a second, how long in days is a million seconds?
- If each dot is a page, how far would you get if you took a million pages?
- If each dot is a star, how high would you climb if a staircase had a million steps?
- If each dot is a person, how big an area is needed for a standing crowd of a million people?
- If each dot is a ton of sand, how many times would it take to carry a million tons of sand?
- If each dot is a sugar lump, how many times would it take to carry a million sugar lumps?
- If each dot is a coin, how far would a million coins stretch if they were placed edge to edge?
- If each dot is "one million" how long would it take to say "one million" one billion times?

Did you notice?

Each small square on this poster is made up of 100 dots!
