Here are several guidelines to help your subjects and verbs agree.

1. When the subject of a sentence is composed of two or more nouns or pronouns connected by and, use a plural verb.

She and her friends are at the fair.

2. When two or more singular nouns or pronouns are connected by or or nor, use a singular verb.

The book or the pen is in the drawer.

3. When a compound subject contains both a singular and a plural noun or pronoun joined by or or nor, the verb should agree with the part of the subject that is nearer the verb.

The boy or his friends run every day.

His friends or the boy runs every day.

4. Doesn't is a contraction of does not and should be used only with a singular subject. Don't is a contraction of do not and should be used only with a plural subject. The exception to this rule appears in the case of the first person and second person pronouns I and you. With these pronouns, the contraction don't should be used.

He doesn't like it.

They don't like it.

5. Do not be misled by a phrase that comes between the subject and the verb. The verb agrees with the subject, not with a noun or pronoun in the phrase.

One of the boxes is open.

The people who listen to that music are few.

The team captain, as well as his players, is anxious.

The book, including all the chapters in the first section, is boring.

The woman with all the dogs walks down my street.

6. The words each, each one, either, neither, everyone, everybody, anybody, anyone, nobody, somebody, someone, and no one are singular and require a singular verb.

Each of these hot dogs is juicy.

Masking Selves, Making Subjects Traise Yamamoto, 1999-01-06 This sophisticated and comprehensive study is the first to situate Japanese American women's writing within theoretical contexts that provide a means of articulating the complex relationships between language and the body gender and agency nationalism and identity Through an examination of post World War II autobiographical writings fiction and poetry Traise Yamamoto argues that these writers have employed the trope of masking textually and psychologically as a strategy to create an alternative discursive practice and to protect the self as subject Yamamoto's range is broad and her interdisciplinary approach yields richly textured in depth readings of a number of genres including film and travel narrative Looking at how the West has sexualized infantilized and feminized Japanese culture for over a century she examines contemporary Japanese American women's struggle with this orientalist fantasy Analyzing the various constraints and possibilities that these writers negotiate in order to articulate their differences she shows how masking serves as a self-affirming discourse that dynamically interacts with mainstream culture's racial and sexual projections

Art Subjects Howard Singerman, 2023-09-01 Nearly every artist under the age of fifty in the United States today has a Master of Fine Arts degree Howard Singerman's thoughtful study is the first to place that degree in its proper historical framework and ideological context Arguing that where artists are trained makes a difference in the forms and meanings they produce he shows how the university with its disciplined organization of knowledge and demand for language played a critical role in the production of modernism in the visual arts. Now it is shaping what we call postmodernism like postmodernist art. The graduate university stresses theory and research over manual skills and traditional techniques of representation. Singerman, who holds an M.F.A. in sculpture as well as a Ph.D. in Visual and Cultural Studies, is interested in the question of the artist as a professional and what that word means for and about the fashioning of artists. He begins by examining the first campus-based art schools in the 1870s and goes on to consider the structuring role of women art educators and women students, the shift from the fine arts to the visual arts, the fundamental grammar of art laid down in the schoolroom, and the development of professional art training in the American university. Singerman's book reveals the ways we have conceived of art in the past hundred years and have institutionalized that conception as atelier activity, as craft, and finally as theory and performance. Nearly every artist under the age of fifty in the United States today has a Master of Fine Arts degree. Howard Singerman's thoughtful study is the first to place that degree in its proper historical framework and ideological context. Arguing that where art

Neural Substrates of Decision-Making in Economic Games
Angela A. Stanton, 2008-03-25
In economic experiments, decisions often differ from game-theoretic predictions. Why are people generous in one-shot ultimatum games with strangers? Is there a benefit to generosity toward strangers? Research on the neural substrates of decisions suggests that some choices are hormone-dependent. By artificially stimulating subjects with neuroactive hormones, we can identify which hormones and brain regions participate in decision-making to what degree and in what direction. Can a hormone make a person generous while another stingy? In this paper, two laboratory experiments are described using the hormones oxytocin OT and arginine vasopressin AVP Concentrations of these hormones in the brain continuously change in response to external stimuli OT enhances trust Michael Kosfeld et al 2005b reduce fear from strangers C Sue Carter 1998 and has anti anxiety effects Kerstin Uvn s Moberg Maria Peterson 2005 AVP enhances attachment and bonding with kin in monogamous male mammals Jennifer N Ferguson et al 2002 and increases reactive aggression C Sue Carter 2007 Dysfunctions of OT and or AVP reception have been associated with autism Miranda M Lim et al 2005

Freedom vs Necessity in International Relations Professor David Chandler,2013-03-14 The last two decades have seen the remarkable rise to dominance of human centred understandings of the world Indeed it is now rare to read any analysis of insecurity conflict or development which does not discuss the need to empower or capacity build local individuals or communities In this path breaking book Chandler presents a radical challenge to such approaches arguing that the solutions to the world s problems are now not perceived to lie within external structures of economic political and social relations but instead with individuals and groups who are often seen to be the most marginal and powerless This fundamental change has gone hand in hand with the shift from state based to society based understandings of the world Chandler provocatively argues that human centred approaches have limited rather than expanded the transformative possibilities available to us and if real change is to be achieved both at a local and a global level then a radical re think in Western thought is required
