John, Jonathan Silberstein-Loeb, 2015 This book charts the rise and fall of the newspaper as the primary medium for the conveyance of news The book focuses on two of the most influential media markets in the modern world Great Britain and the United States between 1688 and 1995 In 1688 Parliament created institutional arrangements that would hasten the rise of the newspaper as the dominant medium for the circulation of news In 1995 the National Science Foundation commercialized the Internet encouraging an astonishing proliferation of information on all manner of topics including the news Per capita newspaper circulation had been declining for decades partly due to shifting social norms and partly due to the rise of broadcast news The Internet exacerbated this trend partly because it provided a cheaper news source and partly because it quickly became a superior vehicle for advertising a major source of revenue for newspaper publishers for over two hundred years However only rarely has advertising revenue and direct sales covered costs Almost never has the demand for news generated the revenue necessary for its supply Non market institutional arrangements have ranged from direct government subsidies to organizational forms that enabled news organizations to cooperate From a historical perspective the large profits reaped by a handful of newspaper publishers in the post Second World War era were anomalous and in no sense a baseline for public policy Never again will the newspaper be the dominant news medium To guarantee an informed citizenry in the future it is necessary to understand how the news business worked in the past This book is organized around eight essays each written by a distinguished specialist and each explicitly comparative Its theme is the indispensability in both Great Britain and the United States of non market institutional arrangements in the provisioning of news Making News at The New York Times Nikki Usher, 2014-04-24 An ethnographic study of The New York Times business desk provides a unique vantage point to see the future for news in the digital age Making Laws and Making News Timothy

Cook,2010-12-01 The news media especially television have become a fixture on Capitol Hill in the past twenty years Making Laws and Making News describes the interactive relationship between the press and Congress that strongly affects the news the legislative process and the types of laws enacted Instead of focusing on how reporters decide who and what to cover and how news is resented Cook examines the other side of the equation the relationship between the media strategies of House member s press offices and the legislative strategies of the members themselves The book won the 1990 Benjamin Franklin Award for Excellence in Independent Publishing

Making News of Police Violence Jeffrey Ian Ross Ph.D.,2000-08-30 Although many people consider excessive police violence disconcerting if when and how they voice their opinion or respond by taking some sort of action has generally remained empirically unknown In the hope of understanding this process Ross has developed a four stage model based on a review of the literature and on interviews with the relevant actors He then uses this tool to analyze police violence that occurred in Toronto Canada and New York City over a fifteen year period To better focus the study he uses in depth case studies of three well publicized cases of police violence from each city matched on important criteria This study addresses a difficult timely and important topic for victims for police personnel and for society Ross concludes that in general most individuals do not respond to police use of excessive force further if and when they do usually depends on the context of the violence Using both quantitative and qualitative methods Ross s model integrates a variety of approaches to improve our understanding of how communities come to define and control the use of force by police including literature on the role of media efforts and their impact upon police violence The work concludes with an analysis of the reasons why people react so infrequently to incidents of excessive force
