Supply Chain Management is a vast topic and enfold every task involved in the movement and storage of raw materials work in process inventory as well as finished goods from the first design step to the ready to deliver good One topic that influences all the different steps in the supply chain is procurement In today s world the business competition has grown due to the globalisation Therefore it becomes every harder to get the best possible goods for the best possible price That makes it challenging to produce goods cheap and sell them with an acceptable price on the market Due to that fact procurement becomes more important for every company especially in western countries because here the wages and production costs have a higher level as in developing countries To stay competitive regarding companies from such countries procurement can be an useful instrument In countries such as UK and the USA Supply Chain Management and especially procurement has become an important part in nearly every company Several specialised Bachelor and Master Programmes have been developed to match the demanded requirements for procurement executives In Germany such programmes are nearly nonexistent Here procurement is not disregarded but purchasers are often career changers thus they are quite often no experts Many courses of instruction are offered but they do not prepare the buyers as good as a complete field of study would do This is the part the Bachelor Thesis will concern In most works or theories only the negotiation strategies and tactics are regarded sometimes in the combination with body language but one analysing the actual negotiation behaviour in the standard situations of German purchasers and comparing them to the theory to find starting points that can be improved cannot be found Thus the question arises whether it is true that there is a lack of information and education in this area
