- a. Carrots are rich in vitamin A, which helps people develop good vision, so it's good to eat carrots, but they don't give you a night good vision.
- b. Many people need eight hours of sleep per day, but it doesn't matter when they have them. However, if you don't go to bed until three in the morning, you may wake up feeling tired.
- c. You won't get spots if you eat chocolate. Scientists say that some chocolate, especially dark chocolate, is good for you. You may get spots from eating fatty foods.
- d. You won't get fat from eating pasta unless you add lots of oil, butter or cream.

- e. Freckles don't cause skin cancer but sunbathing without protection might cause it. So you will need to use a sun screen with a high protection factor.
- f. Unless you are ill or live in a part of the world where there isn't much fresh food, you won't need vitamin pills. If you eat healthy food, you'll get all the vitamins you need.
- g. There is no scientifically valid evidence to suggest that coffee can stunt a person's growth. This idea may have come from the misconception that coffee causes osteoporosis.
- h. No matter what the weather is like, you should apply sun screen all year round.
