Holand, 1957 My First 80 Years Craig Davis, 2001-02-19 It is not fashionable today to speak or write of such things as honor duty and responsibility The author lived his life in accordance with these principles but at the same time he led an enormously enjoyable and rewarding life He worked hard and he played hard and it was all great fun His unusually quick mind sharpened by an engineering and a legal education enabled him to be successful at a variety of occupations and he was in turn an author a military officer a design engineer a teacher a foreign affairs specialist a negotiator an aerospace executive and a lawyer His religious training was quite conventional and he was a member of the Episcopal Church From an early age he was curious about such questions as What is life all about and What happens to us when we die The answers offered by the Episcopal Church and the other mainstream churches seemed illogical and raised still more questions but he was too busy to investigate the matter Finally a friend introduced him to a book about the psychic Edgar Cayce and that book and others that he read provided some surprising and convincing answers The book begins with the author s earliest thoughts and ends in Thailand with the celebration of the millenium In between it tells of an enjoyable and varied life lived in interesting times It is a true account of the author s experiences his thoughts and the people that he encountered along the way
