Tim Potier,2021-12-28 The conflicts in the South Caucasus are now a decade old but still appear impervious to solution The hopes that independence raised have been dashed by an insidious cocktail of past and present regional hegemony historical antipathy and Soviet planning Armenia Azerbaijan and Georgia thus continue to wait for their long awaited Spring In a region where Western academic writing has focussed during the last decade almost exclusively on the dynamics of regional security and Great Power rivalry even in the context of conflict this volume provides an important and necessary legal appraisal of the possible processes and structures which may ultimately facilitate the finding of constitutional settlement in Nagorno Karabakh Abkhazia and South Ossetia In the work Tim Potier an academic lawyer with much experience in the Caucasus has written a powerful but dispassionate account which will prove not only to be of use to academics diplomats and government officials working in the region but also be of lasting value to the ongoing development of the international law on self determination and autonomy Dr Potier also considers the fate of what he prefers to term regionally non dominant titular peoples

Negotiating Freer Trade Ian M. Drummond,Norman Hillmer,2006-01-01 On November 17 1938 Great Britain the United States and Canada after four years of discussion and manoeuvre signed two wide ranging and interlocking trade agreements A few large elements dominated the talks The Americans wanted to breach the walls of the British imperial preferential tariff system The British were anxious to retain markets and political support in the British dominions and the Baltic while protecting their domestic agriculture and improving political relations with the United States Canada whose acquiescence and co operation were necessitated by the pre existing network of trade agreements hoped to win new export markets to retain old ones and to achieve international political tranquility through economic means Although the negotiations began with a mixture of lofty and ignoble motives in the end the latter predominated The authors have drawn on archival and statistical materials in all three countries to provide a clear and detailed account of the economic context of the mid 1930s the process of negotiations the issues and the political and economic significance both then and now of the final agreements Their work is a valuable case study of the problems that face any country that tries to negotiate freer trade It is therefore full of contemporary resonance and relevance and will be of interest to students of and specialists in modern history European British and North American international relations and international economic policy
