Morphosyntactic Development in Child Emirati Arabic Dimitrios Ntelitheos, 2024-09-23 This book investigates selected aspects of the grammatical development of Emirati Arabic the variety of Gulf Arabic spoken in the United Arab Emirates and closely related to the varieties spoken in the rest of the Gulf States While the acquisition of Arabic as a second language has been widely studied first language acquisition of different Arabic dialects has received much less attention Ntelitheos addresses this disparity by presenting a number of systematic studies on the acquisition of Emirati Arabic grammar based on a two year longitudinal corpus of six children He discusses the acquisition of the nominal domain including definiteness and possession the acquisition of verbal functional structure and agreement and the acquisition of word order and negation in the syntactic domain In addition he defines several developmental stages for Emirati Arabic based on established diagnostic tests The discussion is framed within a general survey of the relevant literature in Arabic acquisition studies and combines new empirical data with rigorous discussion of several long standing theoretical problems in the broader field of child language development

Patterns in the Mind Ray Jackendoff, 1993 What is it about the human mind that accounts for the fact that we can all speak and understand a language Why can t other creatures do the same And what does this tell us about the rest of human abilities Recent dramatic discoveries in linguistics and psychology provide intriguing answers to these age old mysteries Along with the stunning advances in neuro science and artificial intelligence this research has breathed new life into the study of the mind The central idea of this book is that our language ability is stored in the brain as a set of unconscious patterns or a mental grammar How do children learn this grammar Ray Jackendoff demonstrates that this remarkable feat involves a rich interweaving of nature and nurture children come to the task of learning language equipped with an innate genetically encoded Universal Grammar that provides the building blocks for all human languages Patterns in the Mind emphasizes the grammatical commonalities across languages both spoken and signed and discusses the implications for our understanding of language acquisition and loss Is the rest of human ability and experience like language Jackendoff shows that indeed many other abilities are also supported by an innate brain specialization among them vision appreciation of music and our ability to interact socially and culturally with other people Thus the mechanisms of human language serve as a vehicle for understanding more generally the way we are
