focuses on the rich diversity of American novelists Modern Black Writers Michael Popkin, Steven Serafin, 1995 Our Conrad Peter Mallios, 2010-09-21 Our Conrad is about the American reception of Joseph Conrad and its crucial role in the formation of American modernism Although Conrad did not visit the country until a year before his death his fiction served as both foil and mirror to America's conception of itself and its place in the world Peter Mallios reveals the historical and political factors that made Conrad's work valuable to a range of prominent figures including Fitzgerald Faulkner Richard Wright Woodrow Wilson and Theodore and Edith Roosevelt and explores regional differences in Conrad's reception He proves that foreign authored writing can be as integral a part of United States culture as that of any native Arguing that an individual writer's apparent national gendered racial political identity is not always a good predictor of the diversity of voices and dialogues to which he gives rise this exercise in transnational comparativism participates in post Americanist efforts to render American Studies less insular and parochial The City in African-American Literature Yoshinobu Hakutani, Robert Butler, 1995 More recent African American literature has also been noteworthy for its largely affirmative vision of urban life Amiri Baraka's 1981 essay Black Literature and the Afro American Nation The Urban Voice argues that from the Harlem Renaissance onward African American literature has been urban shaped producing a uniquely black urban consciousness And Toni Morrison although stressing that the American city in general has often induced a sense of alienation in many African American writers nevertheless adds that modern African American literature is suffused with an affection for the village within the city We Wear the Mask Rafia Zafar, 1997 Zafar demonstrates that in doing so these forerunners of modern black American writers both adapted to and reacted against a milieu of social resistance and cultural antipathy By the end of Reconstruction this first century of black writers had paved the way for a distinctive African American literature
