Mobility and Localisation in Language Learning Jane Fenoulhet, Cristina Ros i Solé, 2010 Learning a foreign language facilitates the most intimate access one can get to the culture and society of another language community The process of learning a foreign language always involves intercultural levels of engagement between the languages and cultures concerned This series is not limited to the field of applied linguistics but also includes relevant research from linguistic anthropology language learning pedagogy translation studies and language philosophy

Attitudes to Modern Foreign Language Learning Brendan Bartram, 2010-12-09 Draws on comparative education to offer an insight into the development of modern foreign language learning

Teachers as Mediators in the Foreign Language Classroom Michelle Kohler, 2015-01-12 Language teachers are key figures in preparing young people for participation in an increasingly multilingual and culturally diverse world yet little is known about how they go about this in practice This book uses examples of classroom interaction to reveal how teachers of languages act as intercultural mediators and the implications of this for practice To date there has been little exploration of how teachers mediate language and culture learning from an intercultural perspective and what underlies their mediation practices in terms of their conceptions of intercultural language teaching and learning This book offers an account of what teachers are thinking feeling and doing as they enact an intercultural perspective on language teaching and learning

Education Science, 2009-01-01 Educational research is not what it was fifteen years ago In this discipline the changes have been dramatic far reaching and rapid Out of the criticisms of the 1990s and the calls for greater accountability of the early 2000s one idea has come to the fore education science There are two main components to education science The first is the principle that research in education must model itself more closely on disciplines seen as highly credible and successful mainly the natural sciences and medicine The second part is that educators must build their practice upon the insights developed through this scientific research process Overall education science has the potential to change how we think about education how we build knowledge about it and how we know when it is successful This volume brings together some of the most active proponents of education science and some of the most committed critics Within it the idea of education science is explored in depth randomized controlled trials considered the gold standard of education science are discussed in detail and the philosophical difficulties of knowledge in education are explored Established thinkers are brought alongside newly emerging analysts and detailed accounts of the institutions driving education science are included Each contribution is thoughtful and balanced engaging with the issues of the field and how they might be addressed As a body of work this collection of essays provides a well rounded critical discussion of the potential and the problems of the education science movement

Intercultural Learning in Modern Language Education Erin Kearney, 2015-11-02 Many educators aim to engage students in deeply meaningful learning in the language classroom often facing challenges to connect the students with the culture of the language they are learning This book aims to demonstrate that substantial intercultural learning can and does occur in the modern language classroom and explores the features of the classroom that support meaningful culture in language learning The author argues that transformative modern language education is intimately tied to a view of language learning as an engagement in meaning making activity or semiotic practice The empirical evidence presented is analyzed and then linked to both the theorizing of culture in language teaching and to practical concerns of teaching

Aspects of Culture in Second Language Acquisition and Foreign Language Learning Janusz Arabski, Adam Wojtaszek, 2011-08-27 In recent years language learning has been increasingly viewed by some SLA researchers as an essentially social psychological process in which the role of a wider sociocultural context should not be marginalized This volume offers a valuable contribution to this growing body of research by providing theoretical considerations and empirical research data on themes such as the development of intercultural communicative competence the role of English as a lingua franca in intercultural communication and the place of cultural factors in SLA theorizing research second foreign language teaching and teacher training The volume also contains contributions which share the linguistic interest in the culture related concepts and constructs such as time modesty politeness and respect discussing the culture dependent differences in conceptualization and their reflection in particular language forms and linguistic devices

Learning the Arts of Linguistic Survival Alison Phipps, 2006-11-10 In this ground breaking contribution to the study of tourism and languages Alison Phipps examines what happens when tourists learn to speak other languages From ordering a coffee to following directions she argues for a new perception of the relationship between tourism and languages from one based on the acquisition of basic functional skills to one which sustains and even strengthens intercultural dialogue The twelve chapters comprising this book tell stories of the experience of learning and speaking tourist languages Drawing on a range of disciplines Alison Phipps takes the reader on a journey through risk way finding mistakes laughter conversations and the imagination She provides rich descriptions of the world of language learning which has remained invisible to mainstream studies of language education existing as it does on the margins of educational life She shows how tourism is shaped by the learning experiences of everyday life Languages she argues passionately fundamentally change the nature of perception dwelling and relationships to other people and the world This book will be essential reading for all those interested in tourism studies and in modern languages education It is a timely study coming at time of crisis in languages as English exerts its power as a world language and as a dominant language of tourism Learning the Arts of Linguistic Survival Languageing Tourism Life will also be of interest to anthropologists linguists geographers sociologists and those studying education

How We're Going about it Melinda Dooly, Diana Eastment, 2008 oeHow we TM re going about it provides a space for teachers TM voices in the nexus between research and practice by outlining specific cases of innovative approaches to language teaching and learning as they have been applied in the classroom The volume includes descriptions of some of the most representative recent work and practice in the field while at the same time covering a wide geographic scope The case descriptions help synthesize research and teaching practice in a way that is accessible to busy teachers teacher trainers or anyone interested in language development Each chapter focuses on a similar approach taken by teachers and researchers from different countries and while the book contains contributions from some well known authors it also includes contributions from lesser known practitioners who merit recognition of their innovative practices This book is an important contribution to language teaching and learning for several reasons It deals with educational innovation at various levels of education young learners primary secondary tertiary it deals with perspectives from different areas of Europe and beyond and it provides examples of grass roots experiences being carried out by real teachers in real classrooms and is honest about the problems faced when implementing educational changes It is therefore a book about authentic experiences with both a theoretical and problem solving base experiences which in turn make an important contribution to the underlying theories described herein Profession 2008 Rosemary Geisdorfer Feal,2008 American Book Publishing Record ,2003

Intercultural Learning in Language Education and Beyond Troy McConachy,Irina Golubeva,Manuela Wagner,2022-04-12 This book provides a contemporary and critical examination of the theoretical and pedagogical impact of Michael Byram s pioneering work on intercultural communicative competence and intercultural citizenship within the field of language education and beyond The chapters address important theoretical and empirical work on the teaching learning and assessment of intercultural learning and highlight how individual language educators and communities of practice enact intercultural learning in locally appropriate ways The book offers comprehensive up to date and accessible knowledge for researchers teachers teacher trainers and students Literary Texts and Intercultural Learning Ana Gonçalves

Matos,2012 This book offers new perspectives on the pedagogical value of literary texts The book is in the first place a theoretical study speculative in nature about the inherent connection between reading and interculturality The author argues that reading literary texts may open up a passage to a third place a space in which a student can learn more about their own identity and ultimately arrive at a more nuanced understanding of otherness Some of the skills implicated in the construction of textual understanding can facilitate intercultural learning opening up opportunities for a pedagogical approach in which the reading of literary texts develops a student s intercultural perspective and fosters reflection on cultural difference The author explores the pedagogical potential of the book s theoretical premises through a sustained classroom based example

Bibliographic Index ,2006 Modern Languages Alison Phipps, Mike Gonzalez,2004-05-24 This is an important book A very important book It is important because it both challenges traditional understandings of language teaching and learning in universities and rejects new understandings which only devalue the potential power of language learning This is not however merely a critique The authors offer a compelling alternative and do so in a language and style which mirror the alternative proposed The authors illustrate their ideas through snapshots of classroom practices which help to build up a picture of what is meant Such illustrations are invaluable Teaching in Higher Education Every so often a book comes along filled with so much wisdom critical insight and sheer humanity that it takes one s breath away Modern Languages is such a book Reclaiming language as both a site of struggle and a crucial sphere of politics Alison Phipps and Mike Gonzalez make it clear that matters of language lie at the heart of any viable pedagogy in which democracy matters But not a language s drained of critical possibilities passion power or imagination but language as the context and medium in which meaning is produced affective investments made and experiences are given legitimacy Any educator parent student or citizen of the world who cares about democracy pedagogy and the crucial role of modern languages creating the conditions for agency politics and yes hope should read this book Professor Henry Giroux Waterbury Chair Penn State University USA I expect it will become a much thumbed handbook for teachers in search of inspiration and I am sure it will be a catalyst to further

debate and exploration But I suspect it may also become a turning point for thinking about modern languages This book exudes life and hope It shows a future where languages can thrive because they are an integral and indispensable part of what it means to be human It is an exhilarating prospect to help to bring that future closer Professor Michael Kelly Director Subject Centre for Languages Linguistics and Area Studies University of Southampton Modern Languages is argumentative in the best sense it is intellectually ambitious and is making a bold and brave argument of its own The story is exciting and offers a radical way of reconceiving teaching and learning in languages It is written with evident passion and conviction and it seeks to reach out to an audience The authors come across as committed and even as brilliant teachers This is a book for its age but yet may have a long shelf life It has made me think about modern languages and language teaching and learning in quite new ways Professor Ronald Barnett Institute of Education University of London This book pushes the traditional field of Modern Languages into new challenges and it crosses intradisciplinary borders between different languages and cultures It is intrinsically about languaging and about being intercultural The authors argue that languages are a social justice issue give voice to language users in general and to language students in particular and engage into powerful erudite reflexive and critical insights This book portrays language and culture education as a passionate intelligent and committed undertaking In sum it is essential and stimulating reading for those Language and Culture educators teaching in Modern Language Departments from universities all over the world who dare Dr Manuela Guilherme Researcher Center for Social Studies Universidade de Coimbra This accessible book aims to challenge and stimulate all those engaged with teaching modern languages in higher education It is not a how to book rather it engages with the complex often paradoxical position of modern languages today and offers arguments for and illustrations of the ways in which teachers of modern languages can position themselves critically in that rapidly changing context It works with the concepts of languaging and being intercultural which arise from a rigorous examination of research findings a challenging critique of current models of work within the discipline and a reflection on existing teaching practices Beginning with an examination of the crisis in modern languages in the U K and North America the authors draw on data and descriptions of learning experiences in the field and position themselves critically within the debates Key problems for teachers and learners are identified and elaborated through examples of critical incidents which point to generic as well as specific issues and solutions in teaching languages in higher education The Teaching Learning in the Humanities series edited by Ellie Chambers and Jan Parker is for beginning and experienced lecturers It deals with all aspects of teaching individual arts and humanities subjects in higher education Experienced teachers offer authoritative suggestions on how to become critically reflective about discipline specific practices

Modern Languages in the Primary School Philip Hood, Kristina Tobutt, 2009-06-04 How can foreign language learning be developed in primary schools In what ways can it be integrated into the primary classroom Modern Languages in the Primary School tackles these questions challenging current perceptions of primary modern languages arguing that modern languages should be fully integrated into the primary curriculum and looking at ways in which this can be achieved The authors examine ways in which language learning can be made a rich experience for all They offer ideas on how to start language programmes in schools or enhance those already in place The book Features a 3 stage practical approach to teaching languages with different age groups in primary schools Develops a coherent view of language learning and teaching Refers to the KS2 Framework elements of oracy literacy intercultural understanding knowledge about language and language learning strategies Contains a chapter which offers a theoretical introduction to content and language integrated learning CLIL Refers to the QTS Standards and offers a short guide to internet based and multimedia resources This book is for Primary ITE students and experienced teachers who are taking on the Modern Language coordinator role or teaching modern languages in primary schools for the first time Philip Hood is Course Director of the National SCITT Primary PGCE and Lecturer in Modern Languages Education at the University of Nottingham Kristina Tobutt is a Primary teacher and Associate Consultant for Nottinghamshire LA
