Model Selection And Multimodel Inference:

Model Selection and Multimodel Inference Kenneth P. Burnham, David R. Anderson, 2007-05-28 A unique and comprehensive text on the philosophy of model based data analysis and strategy for the analysis of empirical data The book introduces information theoretic approaches and focuses critical attention on a priori modeling and the selection of a good approximating model that best represents the inference supported by the data It contains several new approaches to estimating model selection uncertainty and incorporating selection uncertainty into estimates of precision An array of examples is given to illustrate various technical issues The text has been written for biologists and statisticians using models for making inferences from empirical data

Model Selection and Multimodel Inference Kenneth P. Burnham, 2010

Model Selection and Inference Kenneth P. Burnham, David R. Anderson, 2013-11-11 We wrote this book to introduce graduate students and research workers in various scientific disciplines to the use of information theoretic approaches in the analysis of empirical data In its fully developed form the information theoretic approach allows inference based on more than one model including estimates of unconditional precision in its initial form it is useful in selecting a best model and ranking the remaining models We believe that often the critical issue in data analysis is the selection of a good approximating model that best represents the inference supported by the data an estimated best approximating model Information theory includes the well known Kullback Leibler distance between two models actually probability distributions and this represents a fundamental quantity in science In 1973 Hirotugu Akaike derived an estimator of the relative Kullback Leibler distance based on Fisher's maximized log likelihood His measure now called Akaike's information criterion AIC provided a new paradigm for model selection in the analysis of empirical data His approach with a fundamental link to information theory is relatively simple and easy to use in practice but little taught in statistics classes and far less understood in the applied sciences than should be the case We do not accept the notion that there is a simple true model in the biological sciences

Birds as Useful Indicators of High Nature Value Farmlands Federico Morelli, Piotr Tryjanowski, 2017-02-07 This book helps to establish a simple framework to identify and use bird species as a bioindicator for high nature value HNV farmlands This book focuses on suitable methods for monitoring the HNV areas and presents the results of several case studies The chapters put forward ways to integrate ecosystems assessment geographical information systems GIS and strategies for conservation of local biodiversity An innovative framework focuses on the use of species distribution models SDMs in order to explore the importance of each characteristic of HNV farmlands Furthermore the book examines the relationships among bird species richness land use diversity and landscape metrics at a local scale in the farmlands

Model Averaging David Fletcher, 2019-01-17 This book provides a concise and accessible overview of model averaging with a focus on applications Model averaging is a common means of allowing for model uncertainty when analysing data and has been used in a wide range of application areas such as ecology econometrics meteorology and pharmacology The book presents an overview of the methods developed in this area illustrating many of them with examples from the life sciences involving real world data It also includes an extensive list of references and suggestions for further research Further it clearly demonstrates the links between the methods developed in statistics econometrics and machine learning as well as the connection between the Bayesian and frequentist approaches to model averaging The book appeals to statisticians and scientists interested in what methods are available how they differ and what is known about their properties It is assumed that readers are familiar with the basic concepts of statistical theory and modelling including probability likelihood and generalized linear models
