Modern Jihad:

The Apocalypse and the End of History Suzanne Schneider, 2021-09-07 In this authoritative accessible study historian Suzanne Schneider examines the politics and ideology of the Islamic State better known as ISIS Schneider argues that today's jihad is not the residue from a less enlightened time nor does it have much in common with its classical or medieval form but it does bear a striking resemblance to the reactionary political formations and acts of spectacular violence that are upending life in Western democracies From authoritarian populism to mass shootings xenophobic nationalism and the allure of conspiratorial thinking Schneider argues that modern jihad is not the antithesis of neoliberalism but rather a dark reflection of its inner logic The Apocalypse and the End of History is written with the sensibility of a political theorist and based on extensive research into a wide range of sources from Islamic jurisprudence to popular recruitment videos contemporary apocalyptic literature and the Islamic State's Arabic language publications The book explores modern jihad as an image of a potential dark future already heralded by neoliberal modes of life Surveying ideas of the state violence identity and political community Schneider argues that modern jihad and neoliberalism are two versions of a politics of failure the inability to imagine a better life here on earth

Modern Jihad Loretta Napoleoni, 2003 Modern Jihad The New Economy of Terror propels the reader into the netherworld of illegal organizations From the Contras to Al Qaeda Loretta Napoleoni maps out the arteries of an international economic system that feeds armed groups the world over with an endless supply of cash Chasing terror money she takes the reader from CIA headquarters to the smuggling routes of the Far East from the back rooms of Wall Street to Hawala exchanges in the Middle East The economy of terror that Napoleoni identifies is a 1.5 trillion dollar fast growing economic system It is made up of illegal businesses such as arms and narcotics trading oil and diamonds smuggling as well as charitable donations profits from legal businesses and an intricate system of finance Most importantly Napoleoni reveals the interdependency between economies run by armed groups and western economies This ranges from the consumption of narcotics to the production of arms and from the recycling of illegal money to speculation on the stock markets as occurred prior to 9/11 Loretta Napoleoni is the first author to tackle the issues raised by September 11th 2001 from a specifically economic perspective Presenting an astonishing array of evidence taken from extensive research and interviews the book is a fascinating account of controversial issues that lie at the heart of many of today's international problems Revealing how the new economy of terror has evolved by proxy through various wars from the Cold War to Al Qaeda Napoleoni argues that today's Islamic terror groups are driven by real economic forces in the Muslim world They are the same forces that have been hindered in the last century by the economic interests of both the West and its allies the oligarchic powers of the Middle East Shifting the focus away from religious and cultural differences Napoleoni assesses the full extent of the role of the West in developing the economies of armed organisations and provides a valuable insight into real factors dividing East and West unprecedented interviews with active and former jihadists even IS fighters It focuses on the changing nature of jihad as a social phenomenon and how jihad changes jihadists It argues that there are fascinating generational differences between jihadists ideas and behaviors Moreover it argues that jihad changes jihadists through socialization in jihadists groups Indeed radicalization continues in new forms after entering the conflict zone Recognizing that jihadism is a complex social phenomenon and a discourse on religiously legitimized violence with deep roots in the history of Islam and Muslim societies the book asks two simple questions Why have some Muslims residing in the West taken up arms to enter the global battlefields of jihad Have the motivations and experiences of different jihadists all been the same To create a more coherent analysis than the article format allows and to offer new insights the author summarizes and further develops several years of research into jihadism As gaining access to and conducting interviews especially with active jihadists often differs from standard interviews much of the data were collected in a gray zone between more formal interviewing and ethnographic research The empirical material which is based on interviews with active and former jihadists is unique Moreover the methodological reflections are unprecedented and the project offers new analytical insights into jihadism with a focus on how jihadism and jihadists change
