

Task 1 - Reading and Writing Acquisition

A. Text-Driven Reading and Comprehension Lesson Plan – Sixth Grade

1. High-Quality Text Selection

Title: “Esperanza Rising” by Pam Muñoz Ryan

Justification: I chose this text because it aligns with the Three Lens Framework, offering complex themes such as perseverance and identity, as well as strong literary elements like symbolism and character development. The text provides excellent opportunities for comprehension, increased vocabulary, and writing skills.

2. Evidence-Based Strategies and Vocabulary Acquisition

Comprehension Strategies:

- Pre-Reading Activities: Journal - “What would it feel like to lose everything overnight?” (Intro to Vocabulary word Despair) Then, I would have everyone write down three things they notice on the front cover and share what they think the book is about with a partner based on their three findings.
Ex: the rose, bright colors, the crops below her
Explain the expectations, goals, and objectives of the lesson.
Expectations: Be open-minded, use evidence to back up our ideas, show empathy and respect towards each other, and engage fully.
Goals: Explore how people grow through hardship and connect to our own lives.
Objective: “I can analyze how Esperanza changes throughout the story and explain how she displays resilience through her hardships, and I can connect to the story with my own hardships.”
- During Reading Activities: Use a KWL chart (Know, Want to Know, Learned) to activate prior knowledge. I would utilize this activity during reading to boost engagement, potentially leading to new questions or a deeper understanding of their initial questions. Then I would create a T chart with the class to compare/contrast Esperanza's old life vs. her new life. Reflect on what was read and summarize the chapter with a partner.
- Post-Reading Activities: Conclude in a “Think-Pair-Share” discussion to enhance understanding of the texts, and answer “What does it mean to rise after everything falls apart?” Then complete a timeline of Esperanza's transformation with quotes and symbols.

Connecting Reading & Writing in Second Language Writing Instruction Alan Hirvela,2004-08-20 Academic writing often requires students to incorporate material from outside sources like statistics ideas quotations paraphrases into their own written texts a particular obstacle for students who lack strong reading skills In Connecting Reading and Writing in Second Language Instruction Alan Hirvela contends that second language writing students should be considered as readers first and advocates the integration of reading and writing instruction with a survey of theory research and pedagogy in the subject area Although the integrated reading writing model has gained popularity in recent years many teachers have little more than an intuitive sense of the connections between these skills As part of the popular Michigan Series on Teaching Multilingual Writers Connecting Reading and Writing in Second Language Instruction will provide invaluable background knowledge on this issue to ESL teachers in training as well as teachers who are already practicing The English Writing System Vivian J Cook,2014-05-12 English is increasingly becoming the world s lingua franca If we are not native speakers of

The Role of Reading in First and Second Language Acquisition Viktor Kocsis, 2013-07-22 Seminar paper from the year 2012 in the subject Didactics for the subject English Pedagogy Literature Studies grade Sehr Gut University of Graz Institut f r Anglistik course Linguistics Seminar Beyond Interpretation Cognitive and Psycholinguistic Aspects of Reading Research language English abstract A person s future opportunities for success and prosperity will be even more entwined with skilled reading abilities It is therefore an important societal responsibility to offer every person the opportunity to become a skilled reader and in many cases this means becoming a skilled L2 reader GRABE 2009 6 As GRABE reveals with his statement reading has become an indispensable language skill not only in an individual s mother tongue but preferably also in its acquired foreign language without which it is difficult if not impossible to make career nowadays Wherever we go outside our homes we will see and read print even so in more deprived areas such as on hiking trails where instead of advertising wallpapers we are likely to encounter signposts that guide us Since information transfer is reserved to both oral and written communication in modern society reading remains the only option to decode writing However developing reading skills is more than just improving one s word recognition and decoding abilities GRABE points out that most words build phonological activation prior to lexical access 2009 24 in the word recognition process that combines the interactive areas of orthography phonology and meaning This characteristic of reading allows for unconscious pronunciation drilling and training even though it can be assumed that readers will occasionally consciously check the pronunciation of certain unfamiliar words Whether or not supported by conscious learning reading seemingly prepares learners for oral communication by maintaining constant phonological activation Moreover recognized words in the reading process are supposed to transmit some activation energy to their semantic neighbours in the lexical network when they are accessed GRABE 2009 25 26 Known as the notion of spreading activation GRABE 2009 25 this phenomenon suggests that reading establishes a cognitive network of connotations that learners acquire to broaden their lexis for idiomatic application in communicative contexts As one may quickly realize reading involves learning about both language and content which is why it simply must be part of a regular English lesson Therefore the research question addressed in this paper is what English language teachers should keep in mind when developing reading tasks for both First L1 and Second Language Learners L2

The Roots of Reading Dr. Ijya C. Tulloss,2019-03-08 The ROOTS OF READING Writing is the ability to leave information through symbols while reading is the ability to retrieve information previously written Writing is transcribing words we speak into understandable symbols that we see We are not born speaking but we are wired to acquire the speech that we hear in a relatively short time flawlessly We have the inherent capacity to form concepts and label concepts with words Reading is an outgrowth of speaking It follows that to be a good reader one must be a fluent speaker and commands a wide range of vocabulary Unlike speaking we need to be taught to read and write We build a vocabulary of using symbols to represent the sounds that make up words Similarly we represent auditory signs with visual signs These signs are represented by the letters of the alphabet We communicate verbally through speaking and listening For written communication we use writing sending a message and reading retrieving message The method of representing sounds that make up words with signs is called phonics Writing is simply representing the sounds letters we use in saying a word Reading is retrieving the message we wrote Analyzing the sounds that make up a word is called decoding Choosing letters to represent the sounds of the word we want to say is encoding Decoding and encoding are the cornerstones of reading and writing At first the process of decoding is slow but with practice automaticity sets in and decoding is faster Decoding then is reading To be an effective reader one needs to develop a subset of skills as follows phonemic awareness phonics fluency vocabulary comprehension
