Four experiments were carried out to investigate the use of a new paradigm to study word recognition in reading. A new version of self-paced reading (APS 2) makes the distinction between word display time (pressing time = PT) and the blank screen (releasing time = RT). Each time represents a particular processing stage: PT represents lexical identification, and RT represents the use of lexical information. The two stages differentiate pre- and post-lexical processes, respectively. Word frequency is manipulated to affect the two predefined stages of processing. Experiments 1, 2, and 3 showed that (1) frequency affects target PT and RT, and post-target RT when subjects read texts, and (2) the frequency effect was observed only with target PT when subjects read the same words in word-list context. Descriptive analyses showed that the observed effect on target PT in fact depended upon the subjects' reading strategies and perceptual constraints. This result was replicated in Experiment 4, in which a frequency post-effect was observed. Finally, a general framework is proposed to clarify the control of hand movements in APS 2.

Bernard Lété is now at the Institut National de Recherche Pédagogique, University of Paris VII at Paris.

Reading Explorations Book E 97c. Globe Fearon,1998-05-08 Exploring C++ Ray Lischner,2009-02-07 Exploring C uses a series of self directed lessons to divide C into bite sized chunks that you can digest as rapidly as you can swallow them The book assumes only a basic understanding of fundamental programming concepts variables functions expressions statements and requires no prior knowledge of C or any other particular language It reduces the usually considerable complexity of C The included lessons allow you to learn by doing as a participant of an interactive education session You ll master each step in one sitting before you proceed to the next Author Ray Lischner has designed questions to promote learning new material And by responding to questions throughout the text you ll be engaged every step of the way

Architecture Exploration of FPGA Based Accelerators for BioInformatics Applications B. Sharat Chandra Varma,Kolin Paul,M. Balakrishnan,2016-03-02 This book presents an evaluation methodology to design future FPGA fabrics incorporating hard embedded blocks HEBs to accelerate applications This methodology will be useful for selection of blocks to be embedded into the fabric and for evaluating the performance gain that can be achieved by such an embedding The authors illustrate the use of their methodology by studying the impact of HEBs on two important bioinformatics applications protein docking and genome assembly The book also explains how the respective HEBs are designed and how hardware implementation of the application is done using these HEBs It shows that significant speedups can be achieved over pure software implementations by using such FPGA based accelerators The methodology presented in this book may also be used for designing HEBs for accelerating software implementations in other domains besides bioinformatics This book will prove useful to students researchers and practicing engineers alike
