Candlin, 2014-06-06 Process and Experience in the Language Classroom argues the case for communicative language teaching as an experiential and task driven learning process The authors raise important questions regarding the theoretical discussion of communicative competence and current classroom practice They propose ways in which Communicative Language Teaching should develop within an educational model of theory and practice incorporating traditions of experimental and practical learning and illustrated from a wide range of international sources Building on a critical review of recent language teaching principles and practice they provide selection criteria for classroom activities based on a typology of communicative tasks drawn from classroom experience The authors also discuss practical attempts to utilise project tasks both as a means of realising task based language learning and of redefining the roles of teacher and learner within a jointly constructed curriculum Teaching Literature and Language Through Multimodal Texts Domínguez Romero, Elena, Bobkina, Jelena, Stefanova, Svetlana, 2018-08-17 In the past few decades there has been a growing interest in the benefits of linking the learning of a foreign language to the study of its literature However the incorporation of literary texts into language curriculum is not easy to tackle As a result it is vital to explore the latest developments in text based teaching in which language culture and literature are taught as a continuum Teaching Literature and Language Through Multimodal Texts provides innovative insights into multiple language teaching modalities for the teaching of language through literature in the context of primary secondary and higher education It covers a wide range of good practice and innovative ideas and offers insights on the impact of such practice on learners with the intention to inspire other teachers to reconsider their own teaching practices It is a vital reference source for educators professionals school administrators researchers and practitioners interested in teaching literature and language through multimodal texts Matching Books and Readers Nancy L.
