Material Thinking Paul Carter, 2004 Material Thinking is a ground breaking book for artists and for those who study or teach in the arts Author and artist Paul Carter provides an intimate first hand account of how ideas are turned into works and how the material thinking these artworks embody produces new understandings about ourselves our histories and the culture we inhabit Taking as his subject several artistic collaborations which resulted in performances exhibitions or videos Carter explores how each unfolded In the course of this analysis he constructs a philosophy of how the practice and theory of making art are interconnected a philosophy powerful enough to provide an intellectual underpinning for the new and still developing field of creative research Here is startling practical erudition Prodigious book learning is laced with real understanding of what it means to make art to infuse sullen matter with something rousing delicate and vital

Ross Gibson Research Professor of New Media Digital Culture UTS For twenty years I have campaigned for and conducted research in the medium of architecture itself research that is not about architecture but of if Carter begins by drawing the same distinction but his ambition is greater he seeks to explore and define research in the zones where creative mediums shade into each other To work in a zone is to collaborate with practitioners who are centred on their medium of practice Carter posits a new role for the critic not outside looking in not about practice but inside of and pushing practitioners towards the liminal and thus toward the innovative

Leon van Schaik Innovation Professor of Architecture RMIT Archaeology on Film Mary Downs, 1995 A catalogue of films available in the United States through normal channels and made before 1994 that deal explicitly with archaeology worldwide or excavated artefacts Each entry includes details of where the film can be purchased from and the US price Holocaust-era Assets United States. National Archives and Records Administration, 1999

Civilizations of the West Greaves, 1997 Schliemann's Silent Partner Marcelle Schidkowski Robinson, 2006 This is the first and only dedicated biography of Frank Calvert the man to whom Heinrich Schliemann owed the start of his archaeological career Schliemann transformed himself from a businessman into an archaeologist after availing himself of Calvert's offer of a partnership the benefit of Calvert's experience and the proffered opportunity to excavate Calvert's land on which Calvert had long hoped to uncover the remains of Troy Then spurning the partnership and never acknowledging his debt to Calvert Schliemann went on to garner worldwide fame for himself as the inspired discoverer of Troy The world never questioned Schliemann and Calvert overshadowed by the impact of Schliemann's discoveries and fame languished in undeserved obscurity In recent years a number of scholars have thrown some welcome light onto Calvert's contributions to Schliemann but Schliemann's Silent Partner explores every facet of the Calvert Schliemann relationship from Calvert's perspective and in the context of Calvert's own full and varied career. Eminently readable and of equal appeal to scholars and general readers, this book examines the broad range of Calvert's personal achievements and his collaboration with some of the great scientists of the day. Among the several appendices are an extensive bibliography, a chronological index of Calvert's writings, and the texts of a number of Calvert's papers, some never before published. Objective, exhaustively researched, annotated, and illustrated with over thirty photographs, drawings, maps, and documents, this definitive volume reveals Frank Calvert as an important scholar in his own right and a pioneer of Trojan exploration. A permanent contribution to the history of field archaeology.
