No Sun Without Shadow Harry Sternberg:

No Sun Without Shadow Ellen Fleurov, Harry Sternberg, 2000 Labor's Canvas Laura Hapke, 2009-03-26 At an unprecedented and probably unique American moment laboring people were indivisible from the art of the 1930s By far the most recognizable New Deal art employed an endless frieze of white or racially ambiguous machine proletarians from solo drillers to identical assembly line toilers Even today such paintings particularly those with work themes are almost instantly recognizable Happening on a Depression era picture one can see from a distance the often simplified figures the intense or bold colors the frozen motion or flattened perspective and the uniformity of laboring bodies within an often naive realism or naturalism of treatment In a kind of Social Realist dance the FAP's imagined drillers haulers construction workers welders miners and steel mill workers make up a rugged industrial army In an unusual synthesis of art and working class history Labor's Canvas argues that however simplified this golden age of American worker art appears from a post modern perspective The New Deal's Federal Art Project FAP under the aegis of the Works Progress Administration WPA revealed important tensions Artists saw themselves as cultural workers who had much in common with the blue collar workforce Yet they struggled to reconcile social protest and aesthetic distance Their canvases prints and drawings registered attitudes toward laborers as bodies without minds often shared by the wider culture In choosing a visual language to reconnect workers to the larger society they tried to tell the worker from the work with varying success Drawing on a wealth of social documents and visual narratives Labor's Canvas engages in a bold revisionism Hapke examines how FAP iconography both chronicles and reframes working class history She demonstrates how the New Deal's artistically rendered workforce history reveals the cultural contradictions about laboring people evident even in the depths of the Great Depression not the least in the imaginations of the FAP artists themselves Social Concern and Left Politics in Jewish American Art Matthew Baigell, 2015-04-03 This book explores the important and barely examined connections between the humanitarian concerns embedded in the religious heritage of Jewish American artists and the appeal of radical political causes between the years of the Great Migration from Eastern Europe in the 1880s and the beginning of World War II in the late 1930s Visual material consists primarily of political cartoons published in leftwing Yiddish and English language newspapers and magazines Artists often commented on current events using biblical and other Jewish references meaning that whatever were their political concerns their Jewish heritage was ever present By the late 1940s the obvious ties between political interests and religious concerns largely disappeared The text set against events of the times the Russian Revolution the Depression and the rise of fascism during the 1930s as well as life on New York's Lower East Side includes artists statements as well as the thoughts of religious literary and political figures ranging from Marx to Trotsky to newspaper editor Abraham Cahan to contemporary art critics including Meyer Schapiro The Social and the Real: Political Art of the 1930s in the Western Hemisphere ,2006 American Scenes: WPA-Era Prints from the 1930s and 1940s La Salle University Art Museum, 2014 Art Reviews

Art Now Gallery Guide, 2000-11 Diego Rivera Diego Rivera, 2007 After almost fourteen years in Europe Rivera returned to a Mexico under reconstruction in which the revolutionary leaders who had emerged triumphant let arms give way to speeches and promises of change Avid for news from any sector of cultural and political life Rivera not only brought back his knowledge of the European avantgarde but also a desire to put in writing his opinions about art politics and the works of his contemporaries He wrote a great deal about himself it is true but also about the works of art that attracted his attention He wrote as much as he painted with the same expressive force and the same passion He reacted intensely in words to his own work underlining the social function of art and calling on artists to form a common front with the workers and campesinos This book offers a Diego Rivera that is little known a Rivera it is necessary not only to look at but to read
