Nature Of Research Inquiry Into Academic Contexts:

The Nature of Research Angela Brew, 2002-11-01 Increasingly new academics are entering higher education without conventional research training and without a clear idea of what research actually involves This is particularly true of academics who enter from having spent time in a profession including many in the newer disciplines In addition institutions of higher education which do not have a tradition of research are increasingly competing for research funding The Nature of Research looks at this background and discusses what is wrong with academic research and discusses what is wrong with academic research today what needs to change for it to survive how to allow new kinds of research to flourish directions for future action and how academic research can teach us to live in today s complex and uncertain society The aim of the book then is to provide a stimulus to thinking about the nature and role of research with a view to considering what might be appropriate in the next century Since research is so central to university life looking at research will tell us much about what the university of the future might be like

The Nature of Research Angela Brew, 2002-11 What is wrong with research today This book argues that research priorities need to be reordered to address the concerns of today s society

The PhD at the End of the World Robyn Barnacle, Denise Cuthbert, 2021-03-02 This book addresses a world wide audience with reference to a global problem how the PhD can serve the planet It examines the role of the PhD in and of itself and as representative of research the university and evidence based knowledge in relation to global crisis and the future of humanity As such it speaks to the scholar the teacher the policy maker and the administrator concerned with the role of higher education s highest award at a time of great global crisis The approach is critical in that it offers diverse views on these issues and does not seek to privilege one single school of thought The collected articles span theoretical reflections on key issues through to case study examples of how PhDs are being deployed and re thought to address global issues experience It will prove an essential resource for anyone involved in doctorate studies whether as students supervisors researchers administrators teachers or mentors

An Analysis of Steven Pinker's The Better Angels of Our Nature Joulia Smortchkova,2017-07-05 Reasoning is the critical thinking skill concerned with the production of arguments making them coherent consistent and well supported and responding to opposing positions where necessary The Better Angels of Our Nature offers a step by step class in precisely these skills Author Steven Pinker s central thesis is simple mankind has become increasingly less violent over the centuries and will continue to do so Pinker is aware though that many people instinctively believe the opposite and Better Angels is devoted to marshalling data to support and illustrate this central argument as well as a series of secondary arguments about how and why humanity has become less violent Pinker s interpretative skills understanding the meaning of the complex evidence from history are also on display throughout as he tackles the ambiguities of his data the problems it presents and the viable inferences one can draw from it

Australasian Conference on Information Systems 2018 Australasian Conference on Information Systems, 2018-01-01 Databases Software development Computer programming Business applications Computer networking and communications Operating systems Telecommunications Communications engineering The Australian Journal of Education, 2003 New Writing Explorations Graeme Harper, 2025-03-25 This book New Writing Explorations Researching Creative Writing investigates creative writing as an area of research building from a recognition of its qualities as a creative human practice It presents a critical examination of current methodologies and highlights many of the latest advancements in the field of creative writing studies This book's contributors examine writerly knowledge and action places and spaces tested methods and an array of associated concepts Chapters draw not only on critical ideas formed by examining the works of creative writers but also on a range of individual writing activities and the lively and fluid dynamics we frequently encounter when we seek to use writing for both communication and art The chapters in this volume provide excellent examples of the many avenues of inquiry seen in both practice led and critical research in creative writing This volume is relevant for students and scholars interested in the field of creative writing and cognate fields The chapters in the book were originally published as articles and editorials in the New Writing journal They are accompanied by a new Introduction and Conclusion as well as a Foreword by award winning poet and critic Dan Disney Context, 1964 International Journal of Action Research, 2007 The Social Contexts of Research Saad Zaghloul Nagi, Ronald G. Corwin, 1972 Encyclopedia of Case Study Research: L - Z Albert J. Mills, Gabrielle Durepos, Elden Wiebe, 2010 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny, 2001-06 The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells, 2005 Harvard Business School Research Colloquium James I. Cash, Paul R. Lawrence, 1989 The Impact of Teacher's Perceptions and Pedagogical Practices on the Educational Experiences of Immigrant Students from the Commonwealth Caribbean Wendy P. Hope, 2005 This book offers educators who are increasingly faced with diverse multi cultural inclusive opportunity to find a place to start the process of revisionary pedagogical practices that validate and affirm the experiences of their students During the 1960 s the United States immigration laws were changed from one based on a quota system to a method that allowed for persons from virtually every country in the world to enter the United States as immigrants One of the by products of such a change in the laws was the increased numbers of persons entering the United States from the Caribbean Within this category a significant number of persons originated from the British Commonwealth Islands of Guyana Jamaica Trinidad and Tobago and Barbados among others Upon entrance into American schools these newly arrived immigrants have been often treated in the same manner as African American students There have been few accommodations made for culture or language differences despite the linguistic distance existing between the language they speak and that used in American schools as well as the cultural differences between the culture of home and school American This mishandling and incorrect assessment of immigrants from the British Commonwealth Islands is most likely due to false assumptions made about the language they speak Since English is the official language of these islands the population of persons originating from them is assumed to consist of English speakers Such assumptions do not reflect an understanding regarding the linguistic situation of the British West Indies In these nations English is most likely reserved for official domains in government and education while a patois is most likely the language of home church and friends The linguistic situation is further complicated by the many varieties of dialect that exist These language varieties range from those that are not mutually intelligible by English speakers to other varieties with a linguistic distance closer to the English spoken in countries where English is the native language for a significant segment of the population students is a by product of the degree and quality of the education that they have received in their homeland However many have not attended school on a regular basis or have attended schools that are not well equipped or staffed resulting in their not acquiring the necessary skills to do academic work in English as required in American schools It is this population of students in a school located in Brooklyn New York that the study of teachers beliefs perceptions and pedagogical practices and their impact on the educational experiences of newly arrived immigrant students from the Commonwealth Caribbean focuses upon This is an insightful and thought provoking examination of middle school students in the Buxton Intermediate School The purpose of this study as stated by the author is to examine teachers practices in working with immigrant students from the Commonwealth Caribbean in New York City public schools Nonetheless the study goes beyond its goal informative but also necessary for every educator who is teaching in a community with a significant population of immigrants from the British West Indies or is teaching in a linguistically diverse environment To reach its goal Dr Wendy Hope studied a class of newly arrived students from Jamaica Guyana Trinidad and Tobago and Barbados as well as other Caribbean islands It was part of a transitional program This was a self contained class taught for most of the day by one teacher who was also a Caribbean native Ms Jackson Nonetheless students also went to other classes such as mathematics gym music and careers taught by other teachers By examining the teaching practices of these educators who work with Caribbean students within this transitional program issues of race power pedagogy hegemony cultural conflict language and more emerged to reveal that oftentimes well intended and hard working teachers employ approaches that are counterproductive to their goals namely the education of their students two frameworks one drawn from Henry Giroux s 1993 theory of Border Crossings and a second Jim Cummins 1993 theoretical framework for intervention Empowering Minority Students were employed Both paradigms although distinctively different consider issues of power between students and teachers schools and the minority community and institutional structures impacting negatively on students Furthermore pedagogical issues stemming from a dominant subordinate relationship that include use of the minority students language s and culture are addressed study is beyond the purview of this introduction a few of the questions addressed include what is the role of the students language and culture in the classroom is the culture and language of the students used as a vehicle to teach or is it viewed as an obstacle in the learning process to what extent is the culture of these students included in the curriculum how much do teachers know about the culture of these students are parents of these students encouraged by teachers to be active participants in their children s education how do teachers see their role in relation to the transitional program where these students are housed for a significant portion of their daily schedules do teachers feel that different approaches should be used to teach these students observing of teachers it was concluded that little deviation from conventional teaching approaches was employed to teach these students despite teachers acknowledgement that these students were part of a transitional program and their level of English competency was substandard Furthermore it was found that parental involvement was something that teachers considered to fall under the responsibility of school officials rather than their responsibility In addition most teachers had little knowledge regarding how students were assessed and placed in the transitional program Furthermore most teachers admitted to working alone without much collaboration with any other of the teachers including the main teacher Ms Jackson the teacher in the self contained class who had these students for a significant segment of the day These findings a few of the many results yielded by this study stemmed from teachers who felt that they were good teachers with the best interest of their students in mind While examining the results yielded by this study a major concern regarding multicultural education emerged need to respond to racial linguistic ethnic and cultural diversity has been the advocacy of most schools of education In addition in reviewing the mission statements of five schools of education within the City University of New York issues of social justice acknowledgment and respect for what students bring with them to the classroom the need for collaboration among teachers and respect for the language and culture of students are a few of the many goals professed by these documents Nonetheless there exists a disparity between what schools of education are advocating and what is occurring in the classroom Thus other questions emerge regarding why such a divide exists between what is being taught and the actual practice of teaching Could it be that the efforts to address the needs of a diverse population is one that is not really dealt by all but just a few teacher trainers who truly believe in such an approach While these issues are beyond the purview of this study the fact that they have surfaced lends testimony to the fact that we as educators must look at what we are doing
