The Impact of Sensory, Linguistic and Social Deprivation on Cognition Matthew Dye, Olivier Pascalis, 2017-12-21 Early experience plays a crucial role in determining the trajectory of cognitive development For example early sensory deprivation is known to induce neural reorganization by way of adaptation to the altered sensory experience Neville and Bavelier s compensatory theory hypothesizes that loss of one sense may bring about a sensory enhancement in the remaining modalities Sensory deprivation will however also impact the age of emergence or the speed of acquisition of cognitive abilities that depend upon sensory inputs Understanding how a child s early environment shapes their cognition is not only of theoretical interest It is essential for the development of early intervention programs that address not just the early deprivation itself but also the cognitive sequelae of such deprivation The articles in this e book all address different aspects of deprivation sensory linguistic and social and explore the impacts of such deprivation on a wide range of cognitive outcomes In reading these contributions it is important to note that sensory linguistic and social deprivation are not independent factors in human experience For example a child born deaf into a hearing family is likely to experience delays in exposure to natural language with subsequent limits on their linguistic competence having an effect on social interactions and inclusion a child raised in environments where social interaction is highly limited is also likely to experience reductions in the quantity and quality of linguistic inputs Future work will need to carefully examine the complex interactions between the sensory linguistic and social environments of children raised in atypical or impoverished environments

The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies in Language Marc Marschark, Patricia Elizabeth Spencer, 2016. Language development and the challenges it can present for individuals who are deaf or hard of hearing have long been a focus of research, theory, and practice in deaf studies and deaf education. Over the past 150 years, but most especially near the end of the 20th and beginning of the 21st century, advances in the acquisition and development of language competencies and skills have been increasing rapidly. This volume addresses many of those accomplishments as well as remaining challenges and new questions that have arisen from multiple perspectives: theoretical, linguistic, social, emotional, neurobiological, and socio-cultural. Contributors comprise an international group of prominent scholars and practitioners from a variety of academic and clinical backgrounds. The result is a volume that addresses in detail current knowledge, emerging questions, and innovative educational practice in a variety of contexts. The volume takes on topics such as: discussion of the transformation of efforts to identify a best language approach; the sign versus speech debate; a stronger focus on individual strengths, potentials, and choices for selecting and even combining approaches; the effects of language on other areas of development as well as effects from other domains on language itself; and how neurological, socio-cognitive, and linguistic bases of learning are leading to more specialized approaches to instruction that address the challenges that remain for deaf and hard of hearing individuals. This volume both complements and extends The Oxford Handbook of Deaf Studies and Deaf Education Volumes 1 and 2, going further into the unique challenges and demands for deaf or hard of hearing individuals than any other text, and providing not only compilations of what is known but setting the course for investigating what is still to be learned.
