Silence In Second Language Learning:

Silence in Second Language Learning Colette A. Granger,2004-01-01 This text examines the under researched and often troubling phenomenon of silence in second language learning through a triangulation of SLA research memoirs and language learner diaries and psychoanalytic concepts of anxiety ambivalence conflict and loss It moves beyond the view of silence as the mere absence of speech inviting the reader to consider it as both a psychical event and a linguistic moment in the continuous process of identity formation

Silence in the Second Language Classroom J. King,2013-10-31 Why are second language learners in Japan s universities so silent This book investigates the perplexing but intriguing phenomenon of classroom silence and draws on ideas from psychology sociolinguistics and anthropology to offer a unique insight into the reasons why some learners are either unable or unwilling to speak in a foreign language

Understanding Silence and Reticence Dat Bao,2014-02-25 What is the state of that which is not spoken This book presents empirical research related to the phenomenon of reticence in the second language classroom connecting current knowledge and theoretical debates in language learning and acquisition Why do language learners remain silent or exhibit reticence In what ways can silence in the language learning classroom be justified To what extent should learners employ or modify silence Do quiet learners work more effectively with quiet or verbal learners Looking at evidence from Australia China Japan Korea and Vietnam the book presents research data on many internal and external forces that influence the silent mode of learning in contemporary education This work gives the reader a chance to reflect more profoundly on cultural ways of learning languages

Silence in English Language Pedagogy Dat Bao,2023-02-09 Including illustrative real life case studies this book draws on empirical data to explore how silence can be embraced in teaching

Second Language Learning Suzanne Izzo,1981 The fact that some people learn a second language more easily than others has prompted numerous studies designed to link one factor or another with successful language learning This work examines a large number of these studies to assess the importance of various factors involved in language learning The influencing factors suggested are grouped into three categories personal situational and linguistic factors Considered first is the particular set of personal characteristics each individual brings to the task of learning a second language These include general intelligence language aptitude attitude and motivation psychological traits age socioeconomic status and sex The variety of learning situations is then discussed Situational factors include the setting in which the language is learned and the amount and distribution of time devoted to it In addition if the language is learned formally the method used and the characteristics of the teacher must be considered Finally linguistic factors are examined These include both the differences between the first and second languages and the characteristics of the second language itself Author AMH

Semantics of Silences in Linguistics and Literature Gudrun Grabher,Ulrike Jessner,1996 East Asian Perspectives on Silence in English Language Education Jim King, Seiko Harumi, 2020-06-22 Silence is a key pedagogical issue in language education. Seen by some as a space for thinking and reflection during the learning process, for others silence represents a threat inhibiting target language interaction which is so vital during second language acquisition. This book eschews stereotypes and generalisations about why so many learners from East Asia seem either reluctant or unable to speak in English by providing a state of the art account of current research into the complex and ambiguous issue of silence in language education. The innovative research included in this volume focuses on silence both as a barrier to successful learning and as a resource that may in some cases facilitate language acquisition. The book offers a fresh perspective on ways to facilitate classroom interaction while also embracing silence and it touches on key pedagogical concepts such as teacher cognition, the role of task features, classroom interactional approaches, pedagogical intervention and socialisation, willingness to communicate as well as psychological and sociocultural factors. Each of the book's chapters include self-reflection and discussion tasks as well as annotated bibliographies for further reading.

Interpersonal Dynamics in Second Language Education Madeline E. Ehrman, Zoltan Dornyei, 1998-08-04 Until now relatively little research on interpersonal processes and group dynamics addressed the educational domain, particularly second language education. This book fills the gap by synthesizing diverse aspects of interpersonal and group psychology and exploring conscious and unconscious processes that affect learning and teaching. Drawing on humanistic, social and clinical psychology, it addresses unconscious communication among people, group development, class climate, psychological characteristics of effective classroom groups, leadership roles, interpersonal attraction and conflicts, and the relationship of these to learner autonomy and collaborative learning. The authors examine the contributions of the mental health branches of counseling and clinical psychology to our understanding of how teachers, learners and a variety of figures who many never enter the classroom interact with each other to make second language learning more or less effective. In particular, the authors show how the unconscious scripts can cause unproductive conflict, demotivation and eventual aversion to language learning. Moreover, the text shows how learning can be facilitated by appropriate use of interpersonal dynamics. Due to its interdisciplinary nature, this book will be of interest to teacher educators and practicing teachers, researchers, undergraduate and graduate students, school administrators and supervisors of educational programs and many learners themselves. In addition, since the main focus of the book is the affective foundation of the teaching/learning process, this material will be relevant to non-language teachers and clinical practitioners interested in educational issues as well as graduate students in training for those professions.
