

Making Subjects and Verbs Agree

Summary: Ever get "subject/verb agreement" as an error on a paper? This handout will help you understand this common grammar problem.

Here are several guidelines to help your subjects and verbs agree.

1. When the subject of a sentence is composed of two or more nouns or pronouns connected by and, use a plural verb.

She and her friends are at the fair.

2. When two or more singular nouns or pronouns are connected by or or nor, use a singular verb.

The book or the pen is in the drawer.

3. When a compound subject contains both a singular and a plural noun or pronoun joined by or or nor, the verb should agree with the part of the subject that is nearer the verb.

The boy or his friends run every day.

His friends or the boy runs every day.

4. Doesn't is a contraction of does not and should be used only with a singular subject. Don't is a contraction of do not and should be used only with a plural subject. The exception to this rule appears in the case of the first person and second person pronouns I and you. With these pronouns, the contraction don't should be used.

He doesn't like it.

They don't like it.

5. Do not be misled by a phrase that comes between the subject and the verb. The verb agrees with the subject, not with a noun or pronoun in the phrase.

One of the boxes is open.

The people who listen to that music are few.

The team captain, as well as his players, is anxious.

The book, including all the chapters in the first section, is boring.

The woman with all the dogs walks down my street.

6. The words each, each one, either, neither, everyone, everybody, anybody, anyone, nobody, somebody, someone, and no one are singular and require a singular verb.

Each of these hot dogs is juicy.

Making Subjects:

Making Subjects of Formula (Elementary Math Algebra) Lee Jun Cai, Chapter 4 Making Subjects of Formulae In Chapter 4 we explore the important skill of manipulating formulae to make a specific variable the subject of the equation This chapter is key for solving problems in algebra science and engineering where understanding and rearranging formulae is essential You will learn how to isolate any variable in a formula and rewrite it in terms of other variables What You ll Learn Understanding Formulae Begin by understanding what a formula is and how it relates different variables Learn how formulae are used in real world applications from physics to finance Rearranging Simple Formulae Start with simple algebraic formulae and practice moving terms around to make one variable the subject You ll master the process of isolating variables through addition subtraction multiplication and division Rearranging Complex Formulae Build on your skills to tackle more complex formulae with multiple variables You ll learn how to apply the same principles to equations that involve more terms and operations including powers and roots Making One Variable the Subject Focus on how to isolate a specific variable within a formula whether it s a linear quadratic or fractional equation You ll gain confidence in working with a wide variety of expressions Formulae Involving Fractions Learn techniques for handling formulae that contain fractions including how to multiply both sides of an equation by the denominator to eliminate fractions and isolate the required variable By the end of this chapter you ll have the skills to rearrange and manipulate formulae to solve for any variable You ll be able to approach a wide range of algebraic problems and apply these techniques in everyday problem solving Let me know if you d like to make any adjustments or add further details Masking Selves, Making Subjects Traise Yamamoto,1999-01-06 This sophisticated and comprehensive study is the first to situate Japanese American women s writing within theoretical contexts that provide a means of articulating the complex relationships between language and the body gender and agency nationalism and identity Through an examination of post World War II autobiographical writings fiction and poetry Traise Yamamoto argues that these writers have employed the trope of masking textually and psychologically as a strategy to create an alternative discursive practice and to protect the self as subject Yamamoto s range is broad and her interdisciplinary approach yields richly textured in depth readings of a number of genres including film and travel narrative Looking at how the West has sexualized infantilized and feminized Japanese culture for over a century she examines contemporary Japanese American women s struggle with this orientalist fantasy Analyzing the various constraints and possibilities that these writers negotiate in order to articulate their differences she shows how masking serves as a self affirming discourse that dynamically interacts with mainstream culture s racial and sexual projections Art Subjects Howard Singerman,2023-09-01 Nearly every artist under the age of fifty in the United States today has a Master of Fine Arts degree Howard Singerman s thoughtful study is the first to place that degree in its proper historical framework and ideological context Arguing that where artists are trained makes a difference in the forms and meanings they produce he shows how the university with its disciplined organization of knowledge and demand for language played a critical role in the production of modernism in the visual arts. Now it is shaping what we call postmodernism like postmodernist art. The graduate university stresses theory and research over manual skills and traditional techniques of representation. Singerman, who holds an M.F.A. in sculpture as well as a Ph.D. in Visual and Cultural Studies, is interested in the question of the artist as a professional and what that word means for and about the fashioning of artists. He begins by examining the first campus-based art schools in the 1870s and goes on to consider the structuring role of women art educators and women students, the shift from the fine arts to the visual arts, the fundamental grammar of art laid down in the schoolroom, and the development of professional art training in the American university. Singerman's book reveals the ways we have conceived of art in the past hundred years and have institutionalized that conception as atelier activity, as craft, and finally as theory and performance. Nearly every artist under the age of fifty in the United States today has a Master of Fine Arts degree. Howard Singerman's thoughtful study is the first to place that degree in its proper historical framework and ideological context. Arguing that where art is made matters, Singerman's book is a landmark study in the history of art education.

Fundamental Theories of Mega Infrastructure Construction Management Zhaohan Sheng, 2017-10-20. Fundamental Theories of Mega Infrastructure Construction Management: Theoretical Considerations from Chinese Practices is a collection of decades of research and applications of managing megaprojects using theories of complex systems and management sciences. It presents basic classical theory of megaproject management and is a showcase of more than 30 years of research of complex system and management sciences on the theory of megaproject management resulting from the integrating of theory and practice of megaprojects. The theory and models have undergone rigorous systematic testing during the management and implementation of megaprojects in China. Megaprojects are huge undertakings often in infrastructure bridges tunnels airports etc that involve huge levels of investment often take years to complete and typically run into delays cost overruns and any number of unforeseen problems. Over the last few decades no one country has undertaken more of these projects than China and this book presents the fundamental theories underlying the practice of Mega Infrastructure Construction Management as practiced in China. Individual chapters provide a basic definition of Mega Infrastructure Construction and its management an overview of the theories behind it the Formation Path basic concepts fundamental principles scientific problems the Method System of Meta synthesis specialized methods in research and intelligent management of Mega Infrastructure Construction. Although the theoretical construction management problems in this book are derived from construction practices in China they can be applied universally and extended for great fundamental significance.

Freedom vs Necessity in International Relations Professor David Chandler, 2013-03-14. The last two decades have seen the remarkable rise to dominance of human centred understandings of the world. Indeed it is now rare to read any analysis of insecurity conflict or development which does not discuss the need to empower or capacity build local individuals or communities. In this path breaking book Chandler presents a radical challenge to such approaches arguing that the solutions to the world's problems are now not perceived to lie within external structures of economic political and social relations but instead with individuals and groups who are often seen to be the most marginal and powerless. This fundamental change has gone hand in hand with the shift from state based to society based understandings of the world. Chandler provocatively argues that human centred approaches have limited rather than expanded the transformative possibilities available to us and if real change is to be achieved both at a local and a global level then a radical re think in Western thought is required.
