Making The Decision:

Making Decisions That Matter Kathleen M. Galotti, 2005-08-22 Researchers studying decision making have traditionally studied the phenomenon in the laboratory with hypothetical decisions that may or may not involve the decision maker's values, passions, or areas of expertise. The assumption is that the findings of these well-controlled laboratory studies will shed light on the important decisions people make in their everyday lives. This book examines that assumption. The volume begins by covering four basic phases of decision making: setting or clarifying goals, gathering information, structuring the decision, and making a final choice. Comprehensive reviews of existing literature on each of these topics is provided. Next, the author examines differences in decision making as a function of several factors not typically discussed in the literature: the type of decision being made (e.g., legal, medical, moral) and the existence of individual differences in the decision maker (developmental differences, individual differences in style or temperament, differences as a function of expertise). The author then examines the topic of group decision making, contrasting it with individual decision making. The volume concludes with some observations and suggestions for improving people's everyday decision making. This book is intended for use as a core textbook or supplement for courses in psychology, education, or allied disciplines. It will also be an invaluable resource for people who work with people making decisions in various applied settings, such as schools, universities, and health care centers.

Progressive Decision-Making Tools and Applications in Project and Operation Management Mohammad Yazdi, 2024-03-07 In today's complex operational environments, leveraging advanced decision-making tools becomes imperative, particularly in uncertain scenarios. This book deepens the nuances of employing state-of-the-art decision-making methodologies within various industrial sectors for optimal project and operations management. The essence of integrating these advanced tools is to equip professionals with pivotal insights for cost-effective management and to strategize against potential operational shortcomings. Furthermore, the methodologies elucidated provide a robust foundation for crafting informed, risk-centric strategies that uphold the integrity of operations across diverse application domains. Readers will discover a rich tapestry of methodologies tailored for engineers and analysts. Deeply rooted in mathematical modeling, these approaches are complemented by human judgment and participation. Fundamental attributes of these methods include the evaluation of alternatives, benchmarking against criteria, assigning scores based on varying requirements, and assigning weights to denote the significance of individual criteria vis-à-vis others. The book embarks on a structured journey commencing with a comprehensive review of evolving decision-making methodologies in project and operations management, enriched by metadata analysis. Subsequent chapters are meticulously organized, each spotlighting a distinct approach. Topics span foundational concepts in decision making, the nuances of performance metrics in the digital age, and the implications of emerging technologies on operations management. Targeted towards professionals and researchers immersed in project and operations management, this work will also immensely benefit postgraduate and undergraduate students in related fields.

Moreover its relevance extends to professionals across diverse sectors from oil and gas marine and offshore and renewable energies to chemical complexes manufacturing and healthcare systems Decision Making Beverly Hill,2018-10-28

Decision is a single mental action that has the power to change any personal problem The certain decisions have the potential to provide you an immense success All the people who learned and mastered decision making are very successful in everything they do They differ from others because they are capable of changing the circumstances around them within a very short amount of time just because they make the right decision at the right time Decision making is not just important in your business but also in every other area of your life This force affects your whole life your relationships family social life and also physical and mental health Like any other mental ability you can also develop your ability of decision making You have to do it by yourself through unwavering discipline and proper understanding of the power of this force The best way is to learn to listen to your gut feelings your inner voice that knowing place inside you that is called your intuition In many cases our parents taught us to rationalize to think and analyze all the facts then crunch the numbers and make a decision Sometimes that works but if you talk to highly successful people they all rely to some degree on their intuition They seem to know when it is time to go by the book or go with the flow Flow has more fluidity and has more flexibility to move change and morph into the best of the best Our natural innate energy exchanges blend with other energies to become the best idea the best solution or the best something When rules and limitations come into play the flow is restricted Limitations and excuses try to sneak their way into the decision By allowing your intuition to blossom and interact with the flow the flow increases and widens providing even more opportunities The natural rhythm and order of things becomes more synchronous and the decision seems to emerge rather than having to be wrestled with New inspiration is birthed and more and more energy pours into the flow You seem to know exactly what to do and when to do it Decisions become more of an art than an agony As you listen to that inner you you are automatically steered in the right direction It s like you ve got this eagle high up in the sky telling you what is ahead so you can move in the right direction and be ready when it get here Primer on Decision

Making James G. March,1994-05-23 Building on lecture notes from his acclaimed course at Stanford University James March provides a brilliant introduction to decision making a central human activity fundamental to individual group organizational and societal life March draws on research from all the disciplines of social and behavioral science to show decision making in its broadest context By emphasizing how decisions are actually made as opposed to how they should be made he enables those involved in the process to understand it both as observers and as participants March sheds new light on the decision making process by delineating four deep issues that persistently divide students of decision making Are decisions based on rational choices involving preferences and expected consequences or on rules that are appropriate to the identity of the decision maker and the situation Is decision making a consistent clear process or one characterized by ambiguity and inconsistency Is decision making significant primarily for its outcomes or for the individual and social meanings it creates and sustains. And finally, are the outcomes of decision processes attributable solely to the actions of individuals or to the combined influence of interacting individuals, organizations, and societies. March's observations on how intelligence is or is not achieved through decision making and possibilities for enhancing decision intelligence are also provided. March explains key concepts of vital importance to students of decision making and decision makers such as limited rationality, history-dependent rules, and ambiguity, and weaves these ideas into a full depiction of decision making. He includes a discussion of the modern aspects of several classic issues underlying these concepts such as the relation between reason and ignorance, intentionality and fate, and meaning and interpretation. This valuable textbook by one of the seminal figures in the history of organizational decision making will be required reading for a new generation of scholars, managers, and other decision makers.
