Midlife Loss Coping Strategies Sage Focus Editions:

Midlife Loss Richard A. Kalish,1989 This innovative volume focuses on how people cope with the inevitable losses encountered in the middle years of life from the mid thirties to the mid fifties It views midlife as a stage in which people develop and as a time that links youth and the later years in which loss and stress can lead to growth and positive change An introductory chapter summarizes the literature on models of midlife Following chapters then discuss specific losses including the death of one s parents transformations in relationships and parental lives and the loss of a child Two chapters deal with losses associated with marriage divorce and widowhood The impact of job loss in the middle years is evaluated and ways in which usual experiences of midlife may be affected by relocating from one culture to another are examined Each chapter reflects both the research available and the individual contributor s ideas and insights Finally a personal view of the middle years and an editorial exhortation on how this transition stage can be an exciting and positive time in spite of losses encountered Midlife Loss is directed to advanced students academics and practitioners in psychology sociology counselling social work gerontology and family studies

The Trauma of Moving Audrey T. McCollum,1990-08 The challenges faced by those who relocate are enormous It is however a theme which has received little attention from either therapists or researchers This volume reports on a study which describes how women dealt with moving home Issues addressed include the extended time required to re create a home and develop a sense of connectedness to their new environment unexpected psychological reactions and making friends Also addressed are specific methods for intervention for those who counsel women who have moved or are facing a move

Grief and Loss Across the Lifespan, Second Edition Judith L. M. McCoy,Carolyn Ambler Walter,2015-09-11 The book addresses grieving patterns and intervention strategies according to the life trajectory and provides clinical intervention tools and strategies for coping according to the developmental stage of an individual. It incorporates losses beyond death loss with special focus on losses related to maturational development. The second edition reflects new research that has clarified and underscored the value of theories examined in the first edition, particularly in the areas of continued bonds, disenfranchised grief, and ambiguous grief. It describes how grieving is influenced by biological responses, stress, psychological responses to loss, and social norms and support networks.

Key Concepts in Grief, Bereavement and Loss SAGE Publications, Limited, 2010-11-30

Working with Loss and Grief Linda Machin, 2008-12-01

In a book that is replete with illustrative case studies, Linda Machin draws together the findings of a wide range of psychological and sociological theory and research in order to develop a way of thinking about grief and loss that is intelligible to ordinary mortals. Her Adult Attitude to Grief scale promises to be a useful tool by which problems can be identified and progress monitored.

Colin Murray Parkes, Honorary Consultant Psychiatrist to St Christopher's Hospice, Loss is a universal human experience. Supporting those who are grieving a significant life loss is a key role for many professionals in health and social care settings and is the focus in many voluntary organisations. Although there is an extensive literature on loss and bereavement, practitioners often struggle to see how to put theory into practice. Working with Loss and Grief provides a new model which makes clear connections between theory and practice. The Range of Response to Loss model provides a theoretical compass for recognising the wide variability in reaction to loss, and the Adult Attitude to Grief scale is a tool for mapping individual grief and its change over time, providing an individual grief profile. Together these offer a framework for practitioners to:

- Listen to stories of grief told by clients
- Identify common patterns in grief
- Recognize individual difference in grief response
- Assess the need for therapeutic intervention or support
- Prompt therapeutic dialogue
- Guide therapeutic focus
- Appraise clients
- Evaluate outcomes

Case examples show that the experience of grief is highly individual but also capable of being understood in terms of general concepts. As such, it is a valuable resource not only for practitioners and trainees in counselling and social work but also for psychologists, doctors, nurses, and for researchers studying loss and grief.

Dr Linda Machin is a Visiting Research Fellow of Keele University, having been a Lecturer in Social Work and Counselling at Keele. She established a counselling service for the bereaved in North Staffordshire and continues to work as a researcher, a hospice counsellor, and a freelance trainer.

Living Through Loss Nancy Hooyman, Betty Kramer, Sara Sanders, 2021-07-27

Living Through Loss provides a foundational identification of the many ways in which people experience loss over the life course, from childhood to old age. This second edition features new and expanded content on diversity and trauma, including discussions of gun violence, police brutality, suicide, and an added focus on systemic racism.
