

STRESS AND INTONATION

Constructing the Concept: Introduction

Definition: STRESS refers to speaking and it is the emphasis that may be given to certain syllables (i.e. units of words which have at least one vowel sound) in a word, or to certain words in a phrase or sentence. In English, stressed syllables are louder than non-stressed syllables.

Rules for Stress-Patterns:

The symbol "ˈ" is used before the stressed syllable. Some dictionaries also offer the stressed vowel sound as underlined. (/ˈhʌzbənd/ or /hʌzˈbɒnd/ - hUSband)

| First syllable is stressed in: | Second syllable is stressed in: | Third last syllable is stressed in: | Second last syllable is stressed in: |
|--|---------------------------------|--|--|
| two syllable nouns and adjectives. | two syllable verbs. | most of the words ending in suffixes "-al", "-cy", "-phy" and "-ty" | three syllable words and the words ending in "-ic", "-sion" and "-tion" |
| /ˈædrəs/- AD Dress (n) /ˈslendə/- SLE nder(adj) | /əˈdres/- a DDRESS(v) | /iːkəˈlɒdʒɪkəl/- e co L ogical /fəˈtɒɡrəfi/- ph o T ography | /ækeˈdemɪk/- a ca D emic /dɪˈvɪʒn/- d iv I sion |

Affixes (prefixes and suffixes) are never stressed. (/rɪˈmɑːkəbəl/-reMArkable)

Definition: Where stress-patterns are grammatical, INTONATION is rise and fall in a speaker's voice when it has an effect on the meaning of what is said.

Intonation doesn't exist in isolation.

Functions:

It is used for a range of functions such as indication of the attitudes and emotions of the speaker, signalling the difference between statements and questions and between different types of question, focusing attention on important elements of the spoken message. Common examples include wh-word questions.

When action is the main focus of the interrogator:

When the questioned is the main focus of the interrogator:

In surprise:

When answer is close-ended:

When someone is interviewed:

What are you doing?

What are you doing?

What are you doing!!

Yes, I'm doing dishes.

Do you do dishes?

Did you know?

Grammatical words (auxiliary verbs, prepositions, pronouns, articles etc.) usually do not receive any stress. Lexical words, however, (nouns, verbs, adjectives, adverbs, etc.) must have at least one stressed syllable.

How to make your reading impressive?

- Stress the lexical words applying the rules given above.
- Speak the words in such a way that their meaning is conveyed. e.g. always, never/ big, small...

Developing the Concept: Guided Practices

- Underline the syllables to be stressed in the following words keeping in mind the rules given above.

preparation
brother

journey gentle

useful responsibility

service collision

- Underline the stressed word:

When doer is the main focus.

When action is the main focus.

When place is the main focus.

In answer to a 'yes/no' question:

When someone asks a question:

My brother studies at NUML.

My brother studies at NUML.

My brother studies at NUML.

No, my brother doesn't studies at FUUAST.

Do you study at NUML?
