Problem Of The Text Of Acts:

The Problem of the Text of Acts W. A. Strange, 2005-08-22 In the book of Acts the so called Western text departs from the alternative text in numerous points of detail These divergences in the textual tradition of Acts have been the subject of renewed interest in recent years with a notable concentration on Lucan traits in the Western text The author of this study takes into account recent theories which have been proposed on the textual tradition of Acts and puts forward an ingenious thesis not considered hitherto to explain the existence of two streams of textual tradition for the book Analysis of a number of Western textual variants in Acts suggests that they may have arisen from the incorporation of marginal annotations into the text of Acts but Lucan thought and language is indeed characteristic of these readings Investigation of the non Western textual tradition uncovers occasional signs of editing according to the interests of the second century church From this evidence Dr Strange proposes that Acts shared the fate of numerous other works of antiquity by being published posthumously the work of two second century editors is responsible for the remarkable divergence in the textual tradition of Acts *Congress of Arts and Science: History of politics and economics. Evaluation and Translation Carol Maier, 2014-04-23 The definition of value or quality with respect to work in translation has historically been a particularly vexed issue Today however the growing demand for translations in such fields as technology and business and the increased scrutiny of translators work by scholars in many disciplines is giving rise to a need for more nuanced more specialized and more explicit methods of determining value Some refer to this determination as evaluation others use the term assessment Either way the question is one of measurement and judgement which are always unavoidably subjective and frequently rest on criteria that are not overtly expressed This means that devising more complex evaluative practices involves not only quantitative techniques but also an exploration of the attitudes preferences or individual values on which criteria are established Intended as an interrogation and a critique that can serve to prompt a more thorough and open consideration of evaluative criteria this special issue of The Translator offers examinations of diverse evaluative practices and contains both empirical and hermeneutic work Topics addressed include the evaluation of student translations using more up to date and positive methods such as those employed in corpus studies the translation of non standard language translation into the second language terminology the application of theoretical criteria to practice a social textual perspective and the reviewing of literary translations in the press In addition reviews by a number of literary translators discuss specific translations both into and out of English
