Parmee, 2012-12-06 The third evolutionary I adaptive computing conference organised by the Plymouth Engineering Design Centre PEDC at the University of Plymouth again explores the utility of various adaptive search algorithms and complementary computational intelligence techniques within the engineering design and manufacturing domains The intention is to investigate strategies and techniques that are of benefit not only as component I system optimisers but also as exploratory design tools capable of supporting the differing requirements of conceptual embodiment and detailed design whilst taking into account the many manufacturing criteria influencing design direction Interest in the integration of adaptive computing technologies with engineering has been rapidly increasing in recent years as practical examples illustrating their potential relating to system performance and design process efficiency have become more apparent This is in addition to the realisation of significant commercial benefits from the application of evolutionary planning and scheduling strategies The development of this conference series from annual PEDC one day workshops to the biennial Adaptive Computing in Engineering Design and Control conference and this year s event reflects this growth in both academic and industrial interest The name change to include manufacture relates to a desire to increase cover of integrated product development aspects facility layout and scheduling in addition to process I machine control Optical Remote Sensing of Air Pollution P. components The subsequent chapters describe the refractive and reflective characteristics of various optical materials such as optical glass crystals and vitreous silica glass These topics are followed by a discussion on the macro and micro image properties and signal to noise transfer during photographic recording which are crucial to the proper utilization of photographic materials in optical applications This volume further provides the tools required for the analysis of the propagation of laser beams A chapter explores the scalar and vector scattering theories for light scattering calculation of correlated surface microirregularities The final chapter emphasizes the significant role of adaptive optical techniques for wave front correction and removal of deleterious phase perturbations This book will be greatly appreciated by applied scientists and optical engineers
