POLITICS AND THE PULPIT

A Guide to Rules and Regulations on Political Activity by Religious Organizations

As we prepare for another important election season, we want to ensure that faith communities across the country have the information they need to conduct election-related activities within the bounds of federal rules and regulations.

The ways in which religious organizations engage in public policy and politics is a function of their status as nonprofits under section 501(c)3 of the Internal Revenue Code. Periodically, the IRS publishes guidelines to help religious organizations understand what they can and cannot do as tax exempt entities—the IRS last distributed such a resource more than a decade ago. This guide is inspired by that document and has been updated to address scenarios involving contemporary technologies and other present-day concerns.
