

PRESIDENTIAL LIBRARIES

The Presidential Libraries System is a collection of museums, libraries, and archives that preserve the papers, records, and personal effects of the Presidents of the United States. The system was established in 1955 and is managed by the National Archives and Records Administration. It includes 13 presidential libraries, each dedicated to a specific President, and the Gerald R. Ford Library, which is the only one located in the White House complex. The libraries provide a valuable resource for researchers, historians, and the general public, offering a comprehensive look into the lives and legacies of the nation's leaders.
