

Easy Steps

How To Think Outside The Box

As A Small Business

Practice & Polish

Go for quantity versus quality. The more you offer chances for unleashed ideas - the more easily they appear. Then have a session that focuses on polishing a few of the good ideas so that you can move towards implementing the idea into your routine.

Unleash the Brainstorm

Get your team together and have a brainstorming session about how to improve your area of focus. Nothing is off the table here. Brainstorming sessions tend to work better if the mood is light or funny and be sure to set a time limit.

Focus on One Area

It's time to attack an opportunity. Pick an aspect of your business to focus on. Set a brainstorming meeting with your team and tell them the topic. Take time to focus on what you want to accomplish by attacking this one opportunity. Having a goal will help your team.

Get Your Team Involved

Whether your business is made up of just you or a whole sales force - you have a team of people who support your business. This could include family, friends, managers, employees etc. Get them involved in your crusade to think outside the box.

Identify Opportunities

Start paying attention to your business flow and identify areas that are stale or where the 'same old, same old' isn't working like it used to. Write down the areas that need help and any initial ideas.
