Object Recognition In Man Monkey And Machine Cognition Special Issue:

Object Recognition in Man, Monkey, and Machine Michael J. Tarr, Heinrich H. Bulthoff, 1999-03-15 The contributors bring a wide range of methodologies to bear on the common problem of image based object recognition These interconnected essays on three dimensional visual object recognition present cutting edge research by some of the most creative neuroscientific cognitive and computational scientists in the field Cassandra Moore and Patrick Cavanagh take a classic demonstration the perception of two tone images and turn it into a method for understanding the nature of object representations in terms of surfaces and the interaction between bottom up and top down processes Michael J Tarr and Isabel Gauthier use computer graphics to study whether viewpoint dependent recognition mechanisms can generalize between exemplars of perceptually defined classes Melvyn A Goodale and G Keith Humphrey use innovative psychophysical techniques to investigate dissociable aspects of visual and spatial processing in brain injured subjects D I Perrett M W Oram and E Ashbridge combine neurophysiological single cell data from monkeys with computational analyses for a new way of thinking about the mechanisms that mediate viewpoint dependent object recognition and mental rotation Shimon Ullman also addresses possible mechanisms to account for viewpoint dependent behavior but from the perspective of machine vision Finally Philippe G Schyns synthesizes work from many areas to provide a coherent account of how stimulus class and recognition task interact

The contributors bring a wide range of methodologies to bear on the common problem of image based object recognition

Perception of Faces, Objects, and Scenes Mary A. Peterson, Gillian Rhodes, 2003-05-22 From a barrage of photons we readily and effortlessly recognize the faces of our friends and the familiar objects and scenes around us However these tasks cannot be simple for our visual systems faces are all extremely similar as visual patterns and objects look quite different when viewed from different viewpoints How do our visual systems solve these problems The contributors to this volume seek to answer this question by exploring how analytic and holistic processes contribute to our perception of faces objects and scenes The role of parts and wholes in perception has been studied for a century beginning with the debate between Structuralists who championed the role of elements and Gestalt psychologists who argued that the whole was different from the sum of its parts This is the first volume to focus on the current state of the debate on parts versus wholes as it exists in the field of visual perception by bringing together the views of the leading researchers Too frequently researchers work in only one domain so they are unaware of the ways in which holistic and analytic processing are defined in different areas The contributors to this volume ask what analytic and holistic processes are like whether they contribute differently to the perception of faces objects and scenes whether different cognitive and neural mechanisms code holistic and analytic information whether a single universal system can be sufficient for visual information processing and whether our subjective experience of holistic perception might be nothing more than a compelling illusion The result is a snapshot of the current thinking on how the processing of wholes and parts contributes to our remarkable ability to recognize faces objects and scenes and an illustration of the diverse conceptions of analytic and holistic processing that currently coexist and the variety of approaches that have been brought to bear on the issues Object Categorization Sven J. Dickinson, 2009-09-07 This edited volume presents a unique multidisciplinary perspective on the problem of visual object categorization The result of a series of four highly successful workshops on the topic the book gathers many of the most distinguished researchers from both computer and human vision to reflect on their experience identify open problems and foster a cross disciplinary discussion with the idea that parallel problems and solutions have arisen in both domains Twenty seven of these workshop speakers have contributed chapters including fourteen from computer vision and thirteen from human vision Their contributions range from broad perspectives on the problem to more specific approaches collectively providing important historical context identifying the major challenges and presenting recent research results This multidisciplinary collection is the first of its kind on the topic of object categorization providing an outstanding context for graduate students and researchers in both computer and human vision The Oxford Handbook of Thinking and Reasoning Keith J.
