Plutonium William N. Miner, U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, 1964 Plutonium Mieczyslaw Taube, 1964 World Inventory of Plutonium and Highly Enriched Uranium, 1992 David Albright, Frans Berkhout, William Walker, 1993 From the John Holmes Library collection Plutonium William N. Miner, 1964 Chemical Thermodynamics of Neptunium and Plutonium Robert J. Lemire, 2001-08-26 Unlike earlier books in this series this review describes the selection of chemical thermodynamic data for species of two elements neptunium and plutonium Although this came about more by circumstance than design it has allowed for a more consistent approach to chemical interpretation than might have occurred in two separate treatments It has also drawn attention to cases where the available data do not show expected parallels and where further work may be useful to confirm or refute apparent differences in the behaviour of neptunium and plutonium

Management and Disposition of Excess Weapons Plutonium National Academy of Sciences, Policy and Global Affairs, Office of International Affairs, Committee on International Security and Arms Control, 1994-02-01 Within the next decade many thousands of U S and Russian nuclear weapons are slated to be retired as a result of nuclear arms reduction treaties and unilateral pledges A hundred tons or more of plutonium and tons of highly enriched uranium will no longer be needed The management and disposition of these fissile materials the essential ingredients of nuclear weapons pose urgent challenges for international security This book offers recommendations for all phases of the problem from dismantlement of excess warheads through intermediate storage of the fissile materials they contain to ultimate disposition of the plutonium

Toxicological Profile for Plutonium, 1990 Disposing of Weapons-Grade Plutonium CSIS Senior Policy Panel on the Safe, Timely, and Effective Disposition of Surplus U.S. and Russian Weapons-Grade Plutonium, John Taylor, Pete V. Disposal of Weapon Plutonium E.R. Merz, Carl E. Walter, 1995-12-31 This NATO Advanced Research Workshop on Disposal of Weapons Plutonium is a follow up event to two preceding workshops each dealing with a special subject within the overall disarmament issue Disposition of Weapon Plutonium sponsored by the NATO Science Committee The first workshop of this series was held at the Royal Institute of International Affairs in London on 24 25 January 1994 entitled Managing the Plutonium Surplus Applications and Options Its over all goal was to clarify the current situation with respect to plutonium characteristics and availability the technical options for use or disposal and their main technical environmental and economic constraints In the immediate term plutonium recovered from dismantled nuclear warheads will have to be stored securely and under international safeguards if possible In the intermediate term the principal alternatives for disposition of this plutonium are irradiation in mixed oxide MOX fuel assemblies in existing commercial light water reactors or in specially adapted light water reactors capable of operation with full cores of MOX fuel and irradiation in future fast reactors Another option is to blend plutonium with high level waste as it is vitrified for final disposal in a geologic repository

In both cases the high radioactivity of the resulting products provides self shielding and prevents separation of plutonium without already developed and available sophisticated technology The so called spent fuel standard as an effective protection barrier is required in either case Plutonium T. J. Connolly,1960 Plutonium Greg Roza,2008-08-15 This book explains the characteristics of plutonium where it is found how it is used by humans and its relationship to other elements found in the periodic table Plutonium, Deadly Gold of the Nuclear Age Howard Hu,Arjun Makhijani,Katherine Yih,1992
