McCormick,2019-11-21 First published in 1987 This study is concerned with the problem of political obligation the normative question of why one should obey the law and with social contract thought as an answer to this question It is entitled a critique but the critique is not of social contract theory as such but rather of the orthodox treatment of contract that yields so readily to the rough handling and easy rejection that is the normal lot of contractarianism in contemporary treatments In its place will be suggested a reinterpretation of contract that sees it as making different assumptions and requiring different premises and that is proof against many of the orthodox refutations of social contract theory the reinterpretation is thus in the nature of a vindication First from an examination of the most commonly cited champions of contractarianism namely Hobbes Locke and Rousseau will be derive a reinterpretation of contract in the form of a new model or syllogism the features of which will be brought out by contrasting it first with the contemporary ideas of John Rawls and then with the orthodox model itself Democratic consent theory as the heir to the remnants of the orthodox model will be examined and the ideas of T H Green will be considered as embodying an important feature of contractarianism omitted or ignored by the orthodox model and hence by democratic theory Finally the new model of contract will be suggested as a potentially useful approach to the problem of political obligation in the modern context This title will be of interest to student of politics and philosophy The Living Age ,1908 Man Plus Frederik Pohl,1976 Bulletin of the United States Bureau of Labor Statistics ,1929
