The food & drink guide for Papua New Guinea, 2025-09-25 Food Systems Profile - Papua New Guinea Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, European Union, CIRAD, 2023-08-03 Food systems are intimately linked to our lives through the food we eat our nutrition and health our livelihoods jobs and the environment and natural resources of the planet The main challenge for food systems is to produce nutritious food for all while preserving our biodiversity and environment and ensuring equitable distribution of wealth This Food Systems Profile provides a summary of the main food system issues in Papua New Guinea and highlights potential solutions for their sustainable and inclusive transformation It is the result of a systemic analysis and stakeholders consultation that was part of a global assessment of food systems in over 50 countries following a joint initiative by the European Union FAO and CIRAD which aims at catalysing the sustainable and inclusive transformation of food systems Papua New Guinea Cookery Jeanne Clarke, 1977 Food and Agriculture in Papua New Guinea R. Michael Bourke, Tracy Harwood, 2009-08-01 Agriculture dominates the rural economy of Papua New Guinea PNG More than five million rural dwellers 80% of the population earn a living from subsistence agriculture and selling crops in domestic and international markets Many aspects of agriculture in PNG are described in this data rich book Topics include agricultural environments in which crops are grown production of food crops cash crops and animals land use soils demography migration the macro economic environment gender issues governance of agricultural institutions and transport The history of agriculture over the 50 000 years that PNG has been occupied by humans is summarised Much of the information presented is not readily available within PNG The book contains results of many new analyses including a food budget for the entire nation The text is supported by 165 tables and 215 maps and figures Rural household welfare in Papua New Guinea: Food security and nutrition challenges Schmidt, Emily, Fang, Peixun, Mahrt, Kristi, 2022-08-04 Papua New Guinea continues to encourage a policy focus on food and nutrition security The PNG National Nutrition Policy 2016 2026 and Nutrition Strategic Action Plan 2018 2022 NSAP set a path to improve coordination secure sufficient funding and improve technical capacity of nutrition focused pro gram implementation As policy prioritizes improved nutrition outcomes it is important to understand the cost that households face of securing a higher level of nutrition Ensuring a healthy diet that meets nutrition standards is relatively expensive in PNG The analysis presented in this paper which uses detailed household food and non food consumption data suggests that 4 5 of households in the survey sample live below the healthy diet poverty line which sets a calorie threshold and defines healthy diet nutrition targets That is these households do not have the income available or do not consume sufficient food and non food goods to meet their basic needs which includes securing a nutritious diet that meets food based dietary guidelines Effects of COVID-19 and other shocks on Papua New Guinea's food economy: A multi-market simulation analysis Diao, Xinshen, Dorosh, Paul A., Fang, Peixun, Schmidt, Emily, 2021-02-19 Understanding how the Papua New Guinea PNG agricultural economy and associated household consumption is affected by climate market and other shocks requires attention to linkages and substitution effects across various products and the markets in which they are traded In this study we use a multi market simulation model of the PNG food economy that explicitly includes production consumption external trade and prices of key agricultural commodities to quantify the likely impacts of a set of potential shocks on household welfare and food security in PNG In this study we use a multi market simulation model of the PNG food economy that explicitly includes production consumption external trade and prices of key agricultural commodities to quantify the likely impacts of a set of potential shocks on household welfare and food security in PNG We have built the model to be flexible in order to explore different potential scenarios and then identify where and how households are most affected by an unexpected shock The model is designed using region and country level data sources that inform the structure of the PNG food economy allowing for a data driven evaluation of potential impacts on agricultural production food prices and food consumption Thus as PNG confronts different unexpected challenges within its agricultural economy the model presented in this paper can be adapted to evaluate the potential impact and necessary response by geographic region of an unexpected economic shock on the food economy of the country We present ten simulations modeling the effects of various shocks on PNG s economy The first group of scenarios consider the effects of shocks to production of specific agricultural commodities including 1 a decrease on maize and sorghum output due to Fall Armyworm 2 reduction in pig production due to a potential outbreak of African Swine Fever 3 decline in sweet potato production similar to the 2015 16 El Ni o Southern Oscillation ENSO climate shock and 4 a decline in poultry production due to COVID 19 restrictions on domestic mobility and trade A synopsis of this report which focuses on the COVID 19 related shocks on the PNG economy is also available online Diao et al 2020 1 The second group of simulations focus on COVID 19 related changes in international prices increased marketing costs in international and domestic trade and reductions in urban incomes We simulate a 1 30 percent increase in the price of imported rice 2 a 30 percent decrease in world prices for major PNG agricultural exports 3 higher trade transaction costs due to restrictions on the movement of people traders and goods given social distancing measures of COVID 19 and 4 potential economic recession causing urban household income to fall by 10 percent Finally the last simulation considers the combined effect of all COVID 19 related shocks combining the above scenarios into a single simulation A key result of the analysis is that urban households especially the urban poor are particularly vulnerable to shocks related to the Covid 19 pandemic Lower economic activity in urban areas assumed to reduce urban non agricultural incomes by 10 percent increases in marketing costs due to domestic trade disruptions and 30 percent higher imported rice prices combine to lower urban incomes by almost 15 percent for both poor and non poor urban households Urban poor households however suffer the largest drop in calorie consumption 19 8 percent compared to a 15 8 percent decline for urban non poor households Rural households are much less affected by the Covid 19 related shocks modeled in these simulations Rural household incomes affected mainly by reduced urban demand and market disruptions fall

by only about four percent Nonetheless calorie consumption for the rural poor and non poor falls by 5.5 and 4.2 percent respectively

Food Security for Papua New Guinea R. M. Bourke,2001 People have adequate food security when households have the capacity to access sufficient food at all times either through self production or through market purchases Overall food security is high in PNG as most rural people have access to land and can grow most of their food requirements The food security situation is considerably better in PNG now than it was before the Pacific war This is because high yield staple crops have been adopted and people have access to cash income that can be used to purchase food The adoption of new staple crops provided a once off benefit however this phase is now ending in PNG This proceedings contains the 120 papers presented at the Papua New Guinea Food and Nutrition 2000 Conference held at the PNG University of Technology in Lae from 26-30 June 2000
