Race to the Top of the World: Richard Byrd and the First Flight to the North Pole Sheldon Bart,2013-09-23 In the age of adventure when dirigibles coasted through the air and vast swaths of the Earth remained untouched and unseen by man one pack of relentless explorers competed in the race of a lifetime to be the first aviator to fly over the North Pole What inspired their dangerous fascination For some it was the romantic theory about a lost world a hidden continent in the Arctic Ocean Others were seduced by new aviation technology which they strove to push to its ultimate limit The story of their quest is breathtaking and inspiring the heroes are still a matter of debate It was the 1920s The main players in this high stakes game were Richard Byrd a dashing Navy officer and early aviation pioneer and Roald Amundsen a Viking in the sky bitter rival of Byrd s and a hardened veteran of polar expeditions Each man was determined to be the first aviator to fly over the North Pole despite brutal weather conditions financial disasters world wars and their own personal demons Byrd and Amundsen s epic struggle for air primacy ended in a Homeric episode in which one man had to fly to the rescue of his downed nemesis and left behind an enduring mystery who was the first man to fly over the North Pole Race to the Top of the World Richard Byrd and the First Flight to the North Pole is a fast paced larger than life adventure story from Sheldon Bart the only historian with unprecedented access to Richard Byrd s personal archives With powerful never before seen evidence of the race to pioneer one of Earth s last true frontiers Race to the Top of the World is a story of a day when men were heroes and the wild was untamed Race to the Top:

Race, Economics, and the Politics of Educational Change John M. Amis, Paul M. Wright, 2017-01-10 The 2010 national midterm elections produced Republican majorities in Tennessee for the first time since Reconstruction In the wake of that election leaders of the Shelby County Schools SCS school district began legislative maneuvering to advance a long cherished goal granting their schools special school district status a move that would permanently sever the relationship between the SCS and the other school district in the county Memphis City Schools MCS Leaders of MCS realized this action would deprive it of funding from a significant part of the county's tax base So they made a stunning move of their own they renounced the MCS charter Ironically under Tennessee law this action required SCS to take over the running of Memphis's schools SCS would actually be forced to merge with MCS Thus began the largest school district consolidation in the history of the United States

Race Economics and the Politics of Educational Change progresses through nine chapters that examine the MCS SCS merger from a variety of disciplinary perspectives Historical sociological political legal institutional urban planning media studies and educational analyses of the consolidation render John M Amis and Paul M Wright's volume a valuable tool for researchers students policy makers and educators alike The investigations in this work reveal deeply entrenched inequalities that have thwarted education particularly for poor minority students throughout the region's history This text presents insight into factors that have shaped not just the school system in Shelby County but similar systems across the United States A model for other urban areas that face similar challenges this volume will serve as a significant resource for those seeking to understand the trajectory of large scale educational transformations

A Race to the Top Scorecard National Council on Teacher Quality, 2009 Most states are now working in earnest to respond to the U S Department of Education's invitation for applications for the 4.35 billion Race to the Top fund RTT described by Secretary Arne Duncan as a once in a lifetime chance to change our schools Although the Department is clear that states must articulate a coherent and comprehensive plan across four reform areas Standards and Assessments Data Systems Great Teachers and Leaders and Turning Around Low Achieving Schools there is one critical take away for states to understand The Great Teachers and Leaders area of the application is a clear make or break for states It is the most important single assurance area in terms of points assigned It alone can earn a state 138 points out of the 500 total points for the application more than a quarter of the entire RTT point allocation The Department is sending a clear message about tackling human capital reform It recognizes that human capital is an area where bold change is needed in education and also where states can leverage strong influence However there are currently few state exemplars Human capital reform will be challenging and contentious and to date states have been unwilling to take it on in a comprehensive manner It will require break the mold initiatives and iron political will on the part of states to undertake a human capital reform agenda and accordingly the Department has assigned the big points and promised the big money for this tough work The scorecard presented in this report offers smart guesses for how much various human capital strategies might be worth Each of the five areas presented were defined by the Department and assigned various point values in the RTT notice This paper takes their thinking a step further and assigns points for particular strategies Contains 1 footnote
